Veterans' Sacrifices Honored At SAL Memorial Day Ceremony

By TOM GORMAN
Standing before 400 fluttering flags serving as a backdrop on a one-time traffic island that was transformed into a patriotic tribute to veterans, local officials, residents, and veterans gathered to remember the sacrifices of those who served in the Armed Forces during the annual pre-Memorial Day ceremony May 21 at Flags for Veterans Island in Fort Square, hosted by the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294 of the Morrisette Post.

"Today we honor our nation's heroes who sacrificed it all to safeguard our liberties," said Guy Ferris, a dual member of the squadron and the Morrisette Post. "We are grateful to all of Quincy's veterans, with their friends and families and guests, who have joined us today."

Each flag on the island represents a veteran. There are also more than 650 bricks - each inscribed with the name, rank, and service branch of a veteran - that make up a walkway and patio and there are three flagpoles.

Two marble benches facing each other on either side of the walkway were dedicated to the late Squadron Commanders Paul Moody and Joe Brill. Moody was instrumental in creating and maintaining the Flags for Veterans Island and Brill took the reins when Moody became ill.

Ferris, flanked by color guards of the Morrisette Post, North Quincy High School Junior Air Force ROTC, and the Quincy Fire and Police Departments, paid tribute to those who have supported the island over the years, including the Boy Scouts Troop 6, Woodward School students, and the ROTC members.

"The effort that goes into making this island such a special place cannot be measured," he said. "From its founding by our late, long-term squadron commander Paul Moody, as always aided by his wife, Karen and her Quincy High School Class of 1966, through the work of all our officers and members down through the years, plus the irreplaceable work of our many individual volunteers and organizations. The whole production is amazing."

Mayor Thomas Koch said the island exudes a special feeling.

"I can't help every time I drive by this that I think of and Paul Moody and Joe Brill," he said. "And I thank the sons (Sons of the American Legion Squadron) for continuing their legacy. It really gives you a good feeling when you drive by here and see Old Glory in such a way."

Koch noted that not all the flags on the island represent a veteran killed in action.

"Not all died in war, but they responded to the call, and I think it is equally important to recognize and thank all of our veterans for the service they gave protecting our freedom and keeping the peace around the world," he said. "Let us be mindful of those men and women doing their duty, particularly from Quincy, who are in all corners of the globe keeping the peace."

Morrisette Post Commander George Bouchard, also a squadron member, noted that the previous day

18 Units Of New Permanent Supportive Housing In Quincy

Ribbon Cutting Celebrates New Development At 54 Winter St.

In partnership with the City of Quincy and Mayor Thomas Koch, Curtis Construction, West-Work Architects, and Father Bill's and MainSpring, NeighborWorks Housing Solutions recently celebrated the ribbon-cutting of their newest development, which will provide 18 units of permanent supportive housing at 54 Winter St. in Quincy.

The special needs development will provide homes for individuals who have experienced homelessness.

The property represents a step forward in providing safe and affordable housing for some of the most vulnerable in the community. The development is only possible through the partnerships of public and private supporters who worked together to create much needed housing stock in the region.

"Many people and organizations came together to make this development happen," said Robert Corley, CEO of NeighborWorks Housing Solutions. "We're so proud to be a part of this broad, balanced housing vision for the city of Quincy. This neighborhood has a rich and industrious history, and we are honored to be contributing to its revitalization in this important way."

Funders for the project include MetroHousing Boston, Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development, Community Economic Development Assistance Corporation, Quincy Com-

Water Transportation Only Viable Way To Unlock Long Island Potential

Koch: 'There Is No Community In Greater Boston That Does More To Provide For Our Most Vulnerable Residents - The Homeless And Those Suffering From Addiction - Than The City of Quincy.'

By THOMAS KOCH
Mayor, City of Quincy

It was true 10 years ago when the City of Boston finally -- after decades of neglect -- decided to close the Long Island Bridge. It was true 5 years ago when Boston made a surprise announcement that it intended to rebuild the bridge after imploding it and letting its abutments crumble into the ocean for years. It was true during the ongoing permitting process that has exposed ill-thought design plans as structurally and environmentally unsound.

The truth remains that the only viable way to unlock the potential of Long Island -- for whatever Boston sees it for -- is through water transportation.

Over the last several years, the City of Quincy has raised a number of serious and legitimate concerns relative to building a new bridge -- including the absolutely preposterous idea that the existing bridge abutments can be utilized in a new design; the disregard for rising sea levels; the fact that traffic impacts through Squantum have never been quantified in any meaningful way; and that no plan has ever been shared with the City of Quincy relative to what kind of development may or may not take place on Long Island.

While some of these issues have been rejected by various state regulators and courts, a number of issues remain outstanding. The City of Boston is not "rounding the bend" relative to permitting of a new bridge.

In the immediate term, the City has been joined by the commercial boating industry and water transportation advocates in pointing out that the flawed bridge design does not come close to meeting modern standards in terms of its height and width between abutments. As currently designed, the bridge will be extraordinarily detrimental to navigation and have near-fatal consequences for our region's water transportation goals. The United States Coast Guard will rule on this matter.

In addition, the City of Boston must obtain a building permit from the City of Quincy in the future, which will provide another opportunity for serious examination of all the issues related to the bridge proposal.

It has now been a decade since the services provided on the Island have closed, and even under most generous timeline, the bridge and any redeveloped facilities on the Island are years away. What the City of Boston is proposing is a far-off solution to an immediate problem. And again, there is no activity -- including reconstruction of any facilities -- that Boston could not start tomorrow via water transportation.

I am hopeful that we will have productive discussions in the coming months with Mayor Wu relative to the possibilities of water transportation for the Island. In prior years, Boston has simply brushed aside the concept of a robust ferry service to the island as some sort of whimsical idea not based on reality as if such things do not even exist. They do exist. Comprehensive safety and management plans for ferry service can be developed. This is simply not a question of if it's possible -- it's a question of will.

Our issue has never been about uses on the Island. We have made this clear at every community meeting, every permitting session, and every court appearance. Last year, the United States Attorney's Office began an inquiry to determine if our objections to the bridge were indeed about the uses, thus amounting to a Civil Rights violation for denying people access to services. We continue to cooperate fully with that inquiry, but believe wholeheartedly that we have acted in good-faith throughout the process.

What bothers me most about this entire process over the last five years is the view I've heard from a number of our neighbors in Boston that our opposition to the bridge is nothing more than Not-In-My-Backyard-ism. That this is somehow about the use. That Quincy just doesn't want to do its part to solve a crisis that stretches beyond Boston's borders.

I will never accept these arguments. There is no community in Greater Boston that does more to provide for our most vulnerable residents -- the homeless and those suffering from addiction -- than the City of Quincy. We have dedicated countless resources to helping solve these issues: We've opened treatment centers; we're leading the way on outreach and interdiction through outstanding community partners; and we're opening one of the largest housing resource centers anywhere in the region.

Don't ever tell me Quincy isn't doing its part.

Instead, let's get working on a regional water transportation plan that could be a national model.

Senate Passes FY24 Budget, Adopts 12 Sen. Keenan Amendments

The Senate voted May 25 to approve a $55.8 billion FY24 budget, which included 12 amendments filed by state Sen. John F. Keenan to provide crucial funding to initiatives and programs in each of the six communities of the Norfolk & Plymouth District, as well as resources impacting the region and the Commonwealth.

"While continuing to prioritize funding improvements to education, health care, transportation and housing, I am pleased that the Senate's Fiscal Year 2024 budget includes some unique provisions that reflect a year of conversations with constituents, advocates, and other concerned citizens who shared with me their hopes for a better Massachusetts and their suggestions for how to accomplish that," said Sen. Keenan.

The budget reflects substantial increases in local funding over the FY23 budget, both in unrestricted general government aid (UGGA) and funding for public schools (Chapter 70). In total, the FY24 budget approved by the Senate allocates a total of $39.4 million in UGGA and $116.8 million in Chapter 70 funding for the Norfolk & Plymouth District.

"I am pleased that this budget makes major investments that will both help municipalities address pressing local needs and continue to strengthen our schools," said Sen. Keenan.

Many of the budget amendments filed by Sen. Keenan reflect projects and programs within the district that need additional funding, including $50,000 to help increase patient access at Quincy's Manet Community Health Center. The City of Quincy will also benefit from a $50,000 line item to upgrade the Quincy Fire Department's emergency communications equipment. Sen. Keenan was also able to secure an additional support for the Quincy Multicultural Festival with an amendment for $5,000.

Quincy, Milton and Dorchester will benefit from a $100,000 investment in the Neponset River Watershed to help with costs associated with preserving the river's estuary and protecting its native marine life.

Other community-specific projects include $11,000 for new early-learning computers at the Holbrook Public Library and $80,000 for the VFW Drive and Weymouth Street corridor improvement project in Rockland.

Regionally, Sen. Keenan filed an amendment providing $115,000 for elder care services in the communities of Abington, Braintree, Hanover, Holbrook, and Rockland. Sen. Keenan also collaborated with Senators Michael Brady, Susan Morano, Patrick O'Connor, and Walter F. Timilty to secure $100,000 for Plymouth County Fire Chiefs Association to pay for emergency communications systems as well as mass casualty training.

The Senate approved an amendment filed by Sen. Keenan requesting $95,000 to make naloxone readily available at all Red Line Stations, including those located in Quincy and Braintree. This life-saving medicine is used to resuscitate individuals in the event of an opioid overdose.

Sen. Keenan also successfully advocated for increasing funding by $1 million for supportive housing for individuals in recovery as well as an additional

Scenes From Yesterday

FAXON ROAD, NORFOLK DOWNS, MASS.

THIS VIEW of Faxon Road in Norfolk Downs is a 1920 postcard looking north from its intersection with Billings Road. The newly built Parker School (1916) is on the left; a horse-drawn wagon can be seen in the distance. The triple-deckers on the right were two of several built in this immediate neighborhood until the city stopped construction of triple-deckers citywide in the early 1920s. They had been deemed unsightly and unsafe. Quincy was the fastest growing community in the Commonwealth at the time and triple-deckers provided affordable housing for immigrants and factory workers coming to live here. There was a great deal of controversy over the stoppage with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce leading the fight to overturn the decision. But the city fathers prevailed and no more triple-deckers were built here. However, the city did allow four-family two-level side-by-side duplexes, but not many were built because they required larger lots. With so many small house lots in Quincy there certainly would have been many triple-deckers built here as there were in Dorchester, Brockton, Lowell and other "blue-collar" cities.

Pack 6 Kite, Bottle Rocket Night Sunday

On Sunday, June 4th, from 6:30-7:30 p.m. Pack 6 will be gathering to fly kites on Wollaston Beach across from West Elm Avenue and Davis Street (near the Wollaston Beach Visitor Center).

The Pack will also have bottle-rockets available to launch. The whole family is invited to participate and learn more about our program.

Pack 6 is welcoming new members from kindergarten to 5th grade. Pack 6 has been serving the Quincy community for 82 years. Many of the leaders in the pack have been in-involved in scouting since they were youth, collectively they have over 100 years of scouting experience. Cub Scouting is fun for the whole family. In scouting, boys and girls start with their best right now selves and grow into their very best future selves. It's fun, hands-on learning and achievement that puts kids in the middle of the action and prepares them for today – and for life.

Stay Involved, Up-To-Date On Proposed Developments

Quincy is in the midst of a building boom nowadays. Everywhere I look, I see development.

Crossing over the Neponset Bridge onto Hancock Street, it jumps right in your face big time. I lived in Quincy for 25 years moving out about 13 years ago. In this period of time, I have seen some massive development taking place as I have seen everywhere else in Greater Boston. Things can go either way in Quincy. Make sure things go your way.

Every morning when I drive into Quincy where I work on the teaching staff at Quincy High School, I have been looking at lower Hancock Street with all its transit-oriented housing development. It is happening in Quincy Center too and how long before the shadows of tall concrete buildings darken the area in Wollaston Center?

New development of course has its upside but there is also the unintended consequences of expensive housing populating in swaths of neighborhoods. With all this development comes higher prices too for any kind of housing. God forbid if you are a working class family or small home owner, your time here could be limited as many are getting forced out in search of a more affordable place to reside.

Kudos once again to Gene Lee who appears relentless in fighting for Quincy remaining really affordable for everyone and not just those for the few who can afford Quincy's geographical upgrade. Lee is right, "Enough is enough."

I also think Michael Hussey from Merrymount is on to something, too. The variance increase for 105 Sea St. looks mighty large, too. Looking around the Ward 1 area, you can see the beginnings of what could be the further extension of the Manhattanization of Quincy's neighborhoods and not just around MBTA transit stations

Now more than ever, residents concerned about all this new housing and newer housing proposals need to act together or otherwise what has happened all over Greater Boston could happen right here. Stay involved and up-to-date on all proposed developments near you and keep the members of the Zoning Board of Appeals' feet held to the fire. They work for you, the residents of Quincy.

Keep developers, elected officials and ZBA members on their toes. You gotta be like horse(blank) always under their feet at all times.

Mayor Seeks Funds For New Code Project

Mayor James R. McIntyre will seek more federal funds for a second Neighborhood Improvement Code Enforcement Program.

The Mayor said he hopes to get approval for a project "similar in scope" to the North Quincy Improvement Area Program for which the city received $1.8 million in federal money.

"We have several community areas under consideration for the second program," McIntyre declared. He declined to pinpoint them at the present time.

He said he would also seek final approval of an application for a second $71,000 federally financed Urban Beautification Program.

McIntyre said the North Quincy program has proven acceptable to the community and a success.

CITY SLUMLORDS TARGET OF ORDINANCE

A three-alarm fire that ravaged a condemned building in the Quincy Point business district has ignited a city councilor's battle against the slumlord.

Ward 2 Councilor Clifford H. Marshall introduced an order enforcing strict penalties against property owners failing to take prompt action clearing condemned buildings.

Marshall was one of hundreds of witnesses at the three-alarm fire, which razed a condemned three-story structure on Washington Street.

Marshall said the building represented a hazard and criticized delays in its removal. Under Marshall's order a $1,000 fine would be imposed on property owners who allow their property to deteriorate to standards unfit for human occupancy. Property owners would be given three days to remove or suitably repair the building.

Movie Review: 'Fast X'

By BOB GARVER

As the 10th (non-spinoff) installment of the "Fast" franchise, "Fast X" has a certain duty to its fans. It needs to up its game from every chapter that came before it. It needs to contain a development so huge, the series will never be the same. It needs to be worthy of having a letter as cool as "X" in its title. Instead what we get is an okay-at-best movie at a point when "okay" is unacceptable.

Vin Diesel is back as street racer-turned-thief-turned-action hero Dominic Toretto. His friends Roman (Tyrese Gibson), Tej (Chris "Ludacris" Bridges), Han (Sung Kang), and Ramsey (Nathalie Emmanuel) are going off to Rome for a mission, but he's going to try letting Roman lead this one while he stays behind with his wife Letty (Michelle Rodriguez), sister Mia (Jordana Brewster), and son "Little B" (Leo Abelo Perry). Even his Abuelita (Rita Moreno) comes by to see everyone off for what should be a relatively safe mission.

Things don't stay safe for long. Cipher (Charlize Theron), the lead villain of the eighth and ninth movies, staggers into the Toretto house to warn Dom of a new threat to his friends and family. Dante Reyes (Jason Momoa), the son of fifth movie villain Hernan Reyes (Joaquim de Almeida), wants to make Dom and his whole family suffer for Dom's role in his father's death. And he's willing to kill a whole lot of people in the process. Cue Dominic and Letty showing up in Rome to try to stop Reyes from using the team to blow up the Vatican. Oh, and the unnamed secret agency that has employed Dom in the past is disavowing him and treating him as an enemy by new director Aimes (Alan Ritchson), though agents Little Nobody (Scott Eastwood) and new character Tess (Brie Larson) are willing to help where they can.

The splintered storylines that follow include Dom traveling to Brazil to confront Reyes with the help of local street racer Isabel (Daniela Melchior), the team under Roman being broke fugitives in Rome with only the unfriendly Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham) as an ally, Little B evading kidnappers with the help of his uncle Jakob (John Cena), and Letty and Cipher incarcerated together in an Antarctic prison, with a shocking cameo at the helm of their getaway submarine. Or at least the cameo would be shocking if the series hadn't already done the same thing twice before. I fully expect a future installment to be similarly "shocking" based on an event from this movie.

So what does the 10th "Fast" movie do to commemorate the franchise's entry into double digits? Introducing Momoa as the new villain certainly helps. Cipher, dangerous though she was, just wasn't cutting it with her smart distance-keeping and smug knowledge that the male heroes of this franchise are too chivalrous to hit her. Gleeful nutjob Momoa does just enough of the former to keep an advantage, but he's not one for the latter. I'm looking forward to a big physical showdown between he and Dom in a future installment.

Which leads me to my big problem with "Fast X":

it does too much to build up the next chapter without having much of an identity of its own. The action scenes may tick all the physics-defying boxes we expect from these movies, but all the while I knew they were just building to a big cliffhanger, not an exciting climax. Add to that the movie never really pushing any boundaries action-wise (Roman and Tej went to outer space in the last movie, Jakob and Little B flying a glider here doesn't measure up), and an overcrowded collection of characters and subplots and you've got one disappointing summer blockbuster. If my interest is engine fuel, then this series has been leaking for the last three movies, and it's just about out of gas.

Grade: C-

"Fast X" is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence and action, language and suggestive material. Its running time is 141 minutes.

Gingerbread Waffles

By MARIE

My children always loved it when I made ginger bread and served it warm with whipped cream - in fact it is still one of their favorites. So, when I found today's recipe for gingerbread waffles, I knew they would enjoy them just as much.

Ingredients and Directions

2 cups whole wheat flour
2 teaspoons of baking powder
2 teaspoons of ginger
1 teaspoon of cinnamon
½ teaspoon of baking soda
½ teaspoon of salt
½ teaspoon of cloves
2 large eggs
¼ cup molasses
1 stick of butter melted
2 cups of boiling water

Preheat oven to 200 degrees and preheat the waffle iron. (The 200-degree oven serves as a warming oven in between batches)

Mix together the flour, baking powder, ginger, cinnamon, baking soda, salt and cloves in a large bowl.

In another bowl beat the eggs and then blend in the molasses and the butter.

Stir the egg mixture and the boiling water together with the dry ingredients.

If the batter is too thick to pour then slowly add a little bit of hot water.

Lightly coat the waffle iron with cooking spray and pour ¾ cup of batter on to the iron and cook until done (about 3 minutes).

Transfer cooked waffles to a large wire rack and set over a baking sheet to keep warm in the oven.

Repeat with the remaining batter and if you see the batter getting thick keep adding small amounts of boiling water.

Curried Coconut Cauliflower Soup

By SUZIE

Cauliflower is an excellent source of fiber, vitamin C, vitamin K (anti-inflammatory and aids in improving cardiovascular health) sulforaphane (protects lining of stomach) and a very good source of manganese, beta-carotene, beta-cryptoxanthin, caffeic acid, cinnamic acid, ferulic acid, quercetin, rutin, and kaempferol are among cauliflower's key antioxidant phytonutrients.

This antioxidant support helps lower the risk of oxidative stress in our cell which basically means that cauliflower helps lower our cancer risk by helping us avoid chronic and unwanted oxidative stress.

Combine this with anti-inflammatory spices like turmeric, curry, and coriander, onions and garlic which help to combat infections due to antibacterial and antifungal properties as well as they may even be a weapon against gastric and colorectal cancer and the other ingredients, and you have a powerhouse of a soup to have simmering on your stove!

Curried Coconut Cauliflower Soup

1 head of cauliflower, chopped
1 large yellow onion, peeled and chopped and 3-4 cloves garlic, halved
5 cups organic vegetable stock and 1 can of coconut milk (14 oz)

2 tblsp. Thai curry paste, 1 tsp. cumin, ½ tsp coriander, 1tsp. turmeric, sea salt and pepper to taste

1 tablespoon fresh chives and olive oil for drizzling and for sprinkling on top Preheat oven to 375 and spread cauliflower, onion and garlic in single layer on baking sheet, bake about 30 minutes until golden brown.

While baking, bring stock and all seasonings /spices to a boil in large pot over medium heat.

Remove vegetables and add to pot. Simmer about 15 minutes.

Using your hand immersion blender, blend in pot until smooth.

Add in coconut milk and check for seasonings.

Ladle into bowls and drizzle olive oil and sprinkle chives.

Enjoy!

Social Security Matters

I'm Approaching 65 – Should I Claim Social Security?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am fast approaching 65 (in August) and plan to continue working full time. I would like to know the implications of that, and about drawing Social Security. Same question for my husband who is past his full retirement age (he will be 67 this year) and he continues to work full time. Signed: Still Working

Dear Still Working: Married couples should always coordinate their retirement strategy, and you're very smart to do so. Born in 1958, your full retirement age (FRA) for Social Security purposes is 66 years and 8 months. Your FRA is the point at which your earnings from work no longer affect your Social Security benefits, but if you claim at age 65 and continue to work full time, you will be limited to how much you can earn before they take away some (or perhaps all) of your benefits. Here's what will happen if you claim Social Security (SS) to start in August when you are 65:

- Your SS retirement benefit will be permanently reduced by 11% (you'll get 89% of your FRA entitlement). Your monthly amount will only change thereafter due to Cost of Living Adjustments (COLA).

- If you start your benefits in August you will be subject to an earnings limit - either a monthly limit of $1,770 for the remaining months of the year or the 2023 annual limit of $21,240. If the monthly limit is exceeded you aren't entitled to benefits for that month, or if the annual limit is exceeded they will take back benefits equal to $1 for every $2 over the annual limit. Social Security will use whichever method yields the smallest penalty.

- Beginning in 2024, you will be subject only to Social Security's annual earnings limit, which will be something more than the 2023 annual limit of $21,240. If you exceed the 2024 (or 2025) annual limit, Social Security will take away $1 in benefits for every $2 you are over the limit (half of what you exceed the limit by). The annual limit will be in effect until you reach your full retirement age of 66 years and 8 months in April 2026.

Since your husband has already reached his FRA, working full time will not negatively affect his monthly Social Security benefits if he chooses to claim his SS benefits now. However, if he hasn't yet claimed your husband is already earning Delayed Retirement Credits (DRCs) which will increase his benefit when he later claims. DRCs are earned monthly (.667% per month; 8% per year) and can be earned up to age 70 when maximum SS benefit is attained. For your husband, his age 70 benefit would be 29% more than he was entitled to at his FRA. Whether it is wise to wait longer to claim depends on life expectancy, but break even age is about 83 for those who wait until 70 to claim (vs. claiming at FRA). FYI, average life expectancy for a man your husband's current age is about 84; for you about 87.

Since you are both still working full time, be aware that - depending on your combined income from all sources - your Social Security benefits will become part of your taxable income. As a married couple both working full time, your combined income will likely be over the $44,000 threshold after which income tax will be levied on up to 85% of your Social Security benefits received during the tax year (using your normal IRS tax rate). I suggest you consider the income tax implications of claiming Social Security while you are still working full time.

You did not ask about Medicare, but if you (and your husband) now have "creditable" healthcare coverage from your employer ("creditable" is a group plan with at least 20 participants) you can defer enrolling in Medicare Part B until your employer healthcare coverage ends, thus avoiding the Medicare Part B premium while you are working.

Quincy College Graduates 352 At Veterans' Stadium Commencement

A total of 352 students - including 63 city residents - were awarded diplomas at Quincy College's 65th Commencement exercises on May 19, a ceremony that included special recognition for recipients of the first baccalaureate degrees ever awarded by the College.

Kenneth Turner, president and chief executive officer of the Massachusetts Life Sciences Center, delivered the Commencement address and urged graduates to "believe in the power of moving the needle toward progress." In reflecting on his own experience including 26 years as a US Navy officer, Turner advised them to "make plans - that's plural - and be flexible enough to seize new opportunities as they come along. And remember that nothing you can do as an individual will ever be greater than what you can accomplish as a member of a team."

Turner was joined on the dais by Mayor Thomas Koch, Quincy College President Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, Provost and Chief Academic Officer Dr. Servet Yatin, Board of Governors Chairman Gregory Hanley, and Michelle Alongi of Weymouth, who represented the Class of 2023 as its student speaker.

In his remarks to the graduates, Dr. DeCristofaro encouraged them "to take pride in your discipline, your effort and your accomplishment. You have built a foundation as strong as Quincy granite." Dr. Yatin enthusiastically praised them for "overcoming many obstacles to be here today.

You have arrived at this moment because you had a vision, and then the determination to succeed. You made it!"

Alongi, who received her Associate of Science degree in Exercise Science, described the challenges of returning to school as a "chaotic, disorganized" adult learner but who eventually found passion in her studies and embraced her educational experience. She was also among 31 Quincy College students inducted last month into the Phi Theta Kappa academic honor society.

The three Bachelor's degree recipients are Jasmatie Nalini Persaud of Quincy,

O'Donnell Discusses Type Of Land Plan Available Registry Of Deeds

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds homeowners that only a certain type of land plan is recorded here at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, and it is not a plot plan.

"One of the questions we hear frequently from homeowners at the Registry of Deeds is, 'Can I get a copy of my plot plan?' Plot plans are not recorded here at the Registry. What is recorded are land plans, which simply provide the overall dimensions of a property. Sometimes a land plan may get recorded that shows a structure on the lot, but more often than not at the Registry of Deeds it does not," O'Donnell said.

There are times when homeowners require a plot plan when doing a capital improvement, such as an addition to their home or installing a swimming pool. A plot plan, or site plan, contains retained and proposed buildings. Again, the Registry of Deeds does not record these types of plans here in Norfolk County. There are communities where the Building Department may have filed plot plans showing the locations of structures as well as various dimensions of those structures and the dimensions of the structures relative to the lot. "However, plot plans are not always available to the public," O'Donnell said. "In some cases, they may only be accessible to the property owner or a licensed surveyor."

"Also, remember that these plans may not be up-to-date or accurate, as changes to the property may have been made since the plan was filed. It is always best to consult with a licensed surveyor or other professional before relying on any plot plan for legal or construction purposes."

Many times, a mortgage plot plan will be compiled as part of a real estate transaction or mortgage refinancing. Homeowners should check their records first if they are in need of a mortgage plot plan. Also, in some cases, town building departments may have an accurate copy of a property's plot plan and/or the property's as built plan. If not, the homeowner would have to contract a surveyor if they need to have a plot plan created.

Land plans, which are recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, provide the overall dimensions of a property.

"On property deeds, there is a section which lists the metes and bounds (description) of the property," O'Donnell noted. "Most

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Magazine-Style Decorating - It's All About Savvy Styling

How can I achieve the wow factor in interior decorating? I recognize great design in magazines but I'm not sure how to pull it off. Mrs. B

Wouldn't it be amazing if House Beautiful came knocking at our door for a photo shoot?!

Allow me to let you in on a little magazine secret. Those showstopping rooms are outfitted by an interior designer and photographed under professional lighting. But no worries, you have me for advice! It's rather easy to capture that best-dressed look by focusing on savvy styling.

Begin with the "bones" of the room, the architectural features. If your budget allows, consider new chevron or herringbone floors, steel frame windows, arched doorways, and a fireplace to add flair to your room. And don't overlook the ceiling, often called the fifth wall. The current issue of Architectural Digest displays a painted olive-color ceiling with layers of trim and crown molding. The olive color is repeated on the fireplace surround and window trim as well.

When it comes to furniture, choose classic pieces like a leather armchair or tufted velvet sofa in a standout color like cobalt blue or goldenrod. If contemporary is more your style, choose curvy lines on the sofa and chair backs and arms and gussy up the pieces with hints of metallic on the legs and repeat the silver or gold on the coffee table, too. Pepper in an antique piece, ceramic garden stools in a pretty pattern or shape, and sculptural round tables.

They are many options for wall treatments that steal the show. Try a monochromatic look by painting the walls, ceiling, trim, and built-ins all in the same color. Or try a dark color scheme for a moody and dramatic look; if you have a bounty of natural and artificial light in the room, the space will not appear smaller. According to the Canadian magazine, House & Home, "a mural (paint or a wallpaper version) gives depth to a space and instantly makes a room more memorable." In the same vein, luxury wallpaper adds that wow factor you seek.

Finally, even if you have a limited budget, lighting, window treatments, and accessories can bring that magazine- or Pinterest-worthy style. Statement chandeliers are de rigueur on magazine covers. A standout fabric pattern, an abundance of decorative trim, or custom window treatments to match the wallpaper make a room look dreamy. Striking art, round or starburst mirrors, rolling ladders, a large palm or fiddle leaf tree, global collections, and a gallery wall with unified frames look amazing. And don't forget a beautiful rug to add softness and color to your designer scheme.

As always, don't overdo it. Choose a handful of these suggestions - otherwise, the room goes from charming to confounding in a New York minute!

Zoning Board OKs Sea Street Residential Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Zoning Board of Appeals has approved a developer's proposal to tear down a shuttered Sea Street restaurant and construct a three-story, 15-unit residential building in its place – a proposal that got a mixed response from city residents.

The board on May 23 approved the request of Christopher Timmins for a variance to construct the building at 105 Sea St. The 27,597-square-foot parcel was formerly home of Imperial Terrace and is located in a Residence B zoning district.

The applicant first went before the ZBA in the fall of 2021 with plans to construct a 24-unit building on site. Last August, the developer withdrew without prejudice his revised plans to build 18 units after several zoning board members said they could not support the proposal in light of neighborhood opposition. The Planning Board had signed off on the proposal earlier in the month.

The applicant subsequently submitted new plans for the 15-unit building earlier this spring, and the Zoning Board of Appeals took up the matter on May 23.

Speaking during this past week's meeting, Michael Modestino, the applicant's attorney, said the developer worked with Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy on revisions to the proposed building.

"The site has been developed in conjunction with the Ward 1 city councillor, Mr. McCarthy, and every request he has made has been adopted by the applicant," Modestino said.

Modestino said his client was seeking zoning relief for three items, minimum lot area per dwelling unit, green space per dwelling unit, and maximum floor area ratio. The proposal provides 1,840 square feet of lot space per dwelling unit while the zoning code requires 4,500 square feet per unit. It also provides 617 square feet of green space per dwelling unit while the zoning code requires 1,000 square feet per unit. The floor area ratio of the building is 1.0 while the maximum in a Residence B district is 0.5.

Modestino said a hardship exists on the site because of its topography – the grade of the site decreases by about 10 feet from the front to the back. In addition, he said the lot is surrounded by non-residential properties including the Fox and Hound restaurant on one side, a Navy installment on the other and marshland to the rear, with Mount Wollaston Cemetery directly across Sea Street.

Each of the 15 residential units will include two bedrooms and about 1,200 square feet of space, and each will have a balcony, said Tim Johnson, the applicant's architect. The second and third floor of the building will have 300-square-foot amenity spaces for things like meetings or yoga, and the building will also have an indoor space for dog washing and an outdoor space for dog walking.

The building will use electricity, not natural gas, for heating, cooling and cooking, Johnson added. Solar panels will be installed on its roof.

A total of 34 parking spaces will be provided on site, which meets the city's requirements for parking in a Residence B district. Half of those spaces will be in a garage under the building and the other half will be on the surface.

Vehicular access to the site will be provided via a driveway on the southern edge of the lot, adjacent to the Navy property. The driveway will provide access to both a pick-up and drop-off area in front of the building and the parking spaces.

Modestino said the Planning Board had considered items like the traffic impact of the proposal and pedestrian flow when it approved a site-plan review for the project last year.

"That site-plan review, I would suggest, addressed all the issues of traffic and pedestrian flow and safety in its report," he said. "They looked at the parking and safety issues very closely and I think they were addressed, and my client has made certain they will follow the direction of the Planning Board in that regard."

Nearly two dozen residents spoke during the public hearing on May 23, with 10 people in support of the proposal, 11 opposed to it, and one who said she was on the fence. Two city councillors spoke as well.

Several of the residents who spoke in favor of the application said Quincy needs the new housing this development would provide. Rob Matthews, a resident of Commander Shea Boulevard, was among those who did so.

"My wife and I recently downsized – our kids went off to school, we downsized looking for a condo in Quincy, and I've got to tell you, it wasn't easy. You've got Marina Bay, which is a little out of our league, you've got downtown, we ended up at Commander Shea," Matthews said.

"My daughter is looking for a condo. She's a nurse, she's 25, she's looking in Quincy, and if this thing ever works, this would be a good fit for her."

Other supporters, including Michael Grehan of Norton Road, said the property is now an eyesore.

"I strongly support this project for two reasons – I pass it every day and it is an eyesore and secondly there is a shortage of housing in Quincy, and this is a very good project, very well built," he said.

Those who spoke against the project, mainly residents of Merrymount, said they were concerned about the building's impact on their neighborhood. Several residents said they would be okay with letting the developer build more than the seven units allowed on the site by-right, but that 15 units was too many.

"Many of us would not object to a slight increase or something reasonable," said Mike O'Connor of Highfield Road. "We understand that's what you guys do – you approve variances."

Some of those who spoke in opposition, including Kevin Geary of Samoset Avenue, said the project at 105 Sea St. will set a precedent for future development along the thoroughfare.

"I'm aware that this board takes individual projects case but case, but bear in mind that all eyes are focused on what becomes of this project. What this sets in motion is a corridor of condo complexes stretching the length of Sea Street," Geary said.

"You the board can make it clear tonight that the city is not anti-development, yet it believes what truly makes a city great – other than presidents, generals, Dunkin' Donuts – is the people and the neighborhoods. That's what I would like you to take into account today."

Following the comments from residents, Councillor Anne Mahoney suggested the board should give the applicant and neighbors additional time to work on a compromise.

"At the end of the day, we're close. If you say 15, I don't think people are going to be happy and they're going to be disappointed," she said. "I still say we can get there if we work together."

McCarthy, the Ward 1 councillor, voiced his support for the project.

"I'm in support of it. I think it's time to move forward," he said. "It's a tough site. It will always be a tough site. Sea Street is not going anywhere. But, I think this is a good solution to have something residential there. I think it's the quietest option in regards to that area right there."

After the public comments, the board voted 4-0 to grant the variance with the condition that no left turns will be allowed from the site onto Sea Street at any time.

Board member Russell Chin said he did not believe the new building would have a major impact on the Merrymount neighborhood.

"I'm challenged by the notion that the neighbors and the neighborhood of Merrymount will be detrimentally affected to the point that people have talked about tonight, unless the unit owners are driving through your neighborhood," he said.

"I'm hard pressed to understand why they would just go off into your neighborhood all 15 of them, or 30 of them based on the number of spaces, and create havoc. I don't necessarily see that."

Martin Aikens, the board's chairperson, said he did not expect the building to create a lot of new traffic.

"Probably 15 cars will leave there in the morning...that will probably be the max that will leave there in the morning," he said. "We're not talking a major, major amount of traffic. It really isn't."

On the officers' arrival it was determined that the male was the registered owner of the vehicle. He stated that he was just meeting a friend. The male was not acting normal and appeared to be under the influence of drugs. During their encounter the male requested detox, however, began reaching into his pockets. He removed from his pockets two lighters and a small bag of heroin. The male was placed under arrest and transported to police headquarters. During booking the male was evaluated by our department mental health clinician Tim O'Brien. Based on his evaluation the male was transported to the hospital and will be summoned to Quincy District Court for the possession of heroin charge at a later date.

BBB: Watch Out For Phony Medical Bills And Debt Collectors

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

If you get an unexpected message saying you owe money for medical services, think twice before you make a payment. BBB Scam Tracker has received reports about phony medical bills and collections departments.

How this scam works

You receive a letter or a call informing you that you owe money on a medical bill. If you follow up, the "billing department" will insist that you need to pay immediately. If you don't, you will allegedly face consequences, such as fines, damage to your credit score, or even jail time. Eager to settle your debts, you provide your credit or debit card number. But before you pay, the scammer will ask you to confirm your name, address, and other sensitive information, which may include your Social Security or bank account number.

This scam has several versions. In some cases, the bills and medical services are entirely fabricated. For example, one person told BBB Scam Tracker that they "received a medical bill for $500 for Covid testing that supposedly occurred in VA in January. I did a quick look into the business website and the site wasn't even registered/live until May. I was also out of state (in CA) when it claims I got tested."

No matter what pretense the scam uses, giving scammers your personal details puts you at risk for identity theft. Plus, any money you pay them might be lost for good.

How to avoid similar scams:

• Verify the claims. If someone claims you owe money, ask for the details. Any legitimate collections company should be able to tell you to whom you owe money and when you received services. Consider it a red flag if they aren't forthcoming with this information. In any case, it's a good idea to hang up and contact your doctor's office, hospital billing department, or insurance company directly and find out if you really do owe money.

• Look up the customer service number. Do an internet search for the phone number that contacted you or the customer service number on the letter you received. The number should be registered to an official business associated with your doctor or hospital. If it isn't, consider it a red flag. Keep an eye out for reports from others who identify the number as part of a scam.

Breathing Into The Summer With Ease

By LORI SCOTT

With the end of the school year and vacation plans on the horizon, it's the perfect time to slow down, practice mindfulness and ease your way into summertime.

By definition, ease is the absence of difficulty or effort; to move carefully or gradually; the state of being comfortable and relaxed; freedom from pain or discomfort; freedom from care. Sounds wonderful, doesn't it?

To cultivate a sense of ease and shift your mindset to summer mode, start at the very beginning with your most basic human need - BREATHING. The essence of mindfulness is known as the Art of Returning - returning back home to self and to your BREATHING. Sometimes, it's just that simple.

I've always been fascinated by psychology, in particular, Psychologist Abraham Maslow's Hierarchy of 8 Basic Human Needs (1943). He said that people are motivated to achieve certain needs and that some needs take precedence over others. Our most basic need is for physical survival and this will be the first thing that motivates our behavior. Once that level is fulfilled, individuals can attend to the needs on the next level.

Our first basic need begins with Biological and Physiological Needs such as air, breathing, food, water, shelter, warmth, sleep, rest. These are biological requirements for human survival. If these needs are not satisfied, the human body cannot function optimally. These needs are considered the most important as all the other needs become secondary until these needs are met.

Similarly, breathing is also the foundation of yoga and meditation. Mindfulness teaches us that rhythmic control of the breath helps us think more clearly and kindly. Working from the inside - out, we can master the breath. When we observe the place in the body, the duration and count of breath, we learn how to breathe. Studies show that deep breathing contracts and relaxes the diaphragm which stimulates the vagus nerve naturally lowering the heart rate and activating the relaxation response of the nervous system.

Science journalist James Nestor, author of New York Times Bestseller Breath: The Science of a Lost Art, says "there is nothing more essential to our health and well-being than breathing: take air in, let it out, repeat 25,000 times a day." Nestor travels the world researching the million-year-long history of how the human species has lost the ability to breathe properly and why we suffer from snoring, sleep apnea, asthma, autoimmune disease, allergies—because of it. According to his scientific data, breathing through your nose is the gold standard. It filters toxins, moistens the air, and oxygenates our bodies more effectively. The most beneficial breath is with a closed mouth: breathe in for about 5.5 seconds, then exhale for 5.5 seconds. That's 5.5 breaths a minute for a total of about 5.5 liters of air. If you'd like to learn more about how to breathe, I recommend adding James Nestor's eye-opening, award-winning, thought-provoking book Breath to your summer reading list!

Tips for Creating Ease This Summer

We've all heard of the term mind-body connection. Any idea what connects the mind and the body together? You guessed it - the breath! As long as you are breathing, your mind and your body are never separate. When you bring more awareness to your breathing, you deepen that connection and the relationship you have with YOU. Obviously you are breathing right now if you are reading this, but consider the quality of your breathing throughout the day. There may be many times during the day when you're unaware of your breathing or unknowingly creating dis-ease in your body. Simply by pausing for a moment you can strengthen this powerful connection.

MONTHLY MINDFULNESS

By Lori Scott, E-RYT 500

Bring your mind and body back into balance by using this STOP method:

S = Stop.

T = Take a breath.

O = Observe.

P = Proceed.

Stop what you are doing. Take a breath. Observe what ever is happening in your body. Perhaps your shoulders are tense, your jaw is clenched or you were unconsciously holding your breath. Maybe you're hungry, dehydrated, tired or need a break. Proceed and respond more effectively now that you have reconnected with your needs.

Try setting reminders on your phone every few hours to STOP throughout your day. We can all become an active participant in the management of our own health and develop the potential to experience any moment, no matter how difficult or intense, with a little more balance and ease. It's possible that your response to a situation is motivated by the deprivation of your most basic human needs for survival.

Limit overbooking yourself and your family. Even though summertime is known for care-free, lazy days, our calendars quickly get very busy. Consider leaving yourself some free time, especially from activities that do not bring a sense of ease or happiness. Simplifying your calendar can allow more time for the things that nourish your life in a calming way.

Give yourself extra time to walk, move and travel slowly. Simply slowing down your pace, stride or travel time sends a signal to your entire being to slow down. When you're rushing, it's hard to feel at ease. Remember, the word 'ease' means to move carefully or gradually.

Practice gratitude. You could repeat these phrases or create your own affirmations: My needs are being met. I am breathing. I am grateful I have fresh air to breathe. I am grateful for the abundance of clean water available to me. I am grateful for food. I am warm. I can rest when I need to. I may not have everything I want, but I have all that I need.

Join a yoga community this summer! Our welcoming, non-competitive, loving community meets on Wollaston Beach (across from Hollis Ave) every Sunday at 8 am through September. Class is for all levels, beginner friendly. No yoga experience, flexibility or sign up needed. Together, we practice breathing, slowing down and having some fun. 'Easy like Sunday morning' is our motto! For details, please email loriscottyoga@gmail.com.

North Quincy Restaurant Getting New Owners

By SCOTT JACKSON

A North Quincy restaurant will soon have new owners.

The Board of License Commissioners on May 23 approved the transfer of the all alcohol license held by Assembly at 425 Hancock St. to a new ownership group, Table Nine Hospitality Inc. The new owners plan to keep the Assembly name, Chuck Hitchcock said, and operations at the restaurant will remain unchanged.

"To be clear, we are purchasing the brand. The current owners have built a great business and we plan to keep general operations basically the same," Hitchcock said. "We know it is a loved establishment within the community and we hope to continue that."

The new owners operate more than a dozen restaurants in the region, Hitchcock said.

"We have considerable experience in the business," he said. "We all came together several years ago at McGreevy's in Boston and we own and operate with a partnership group probably close to 17 independent restaurants in communities."

The board approved the transfer in a unanimous vote.

"Good luck," said Police Chief Paul Keenan. "I hope you're as successful as [the previous owner]."

In other business on May 23, the Board of License Commissioners:

- Granted a special-use permit and one-day beer and wine license for the annual Quincy Pride Festival, which will be held Sunday, June 4, from noon to 5 p.m. at Kilroy Square in Quincy Center. More than 1,500 people attended the event in previous years, said John McDonald, and the turnout is expected to be stronger this year with the festival moving from Pageant Field to the downtown.

- Granted a special-use permit and one-day liquor license to the Thomas Crane Public Library for an after-hours event scheduled for Friday, June 16, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the main library on Washington Street. This month's event will have an '80s block party theme.

- Granted a temporary extension of premises to Break Rock Brewing, 534 Victory Rd., for the Marina Bay Summer Market on Sunday, June 25, from noon to 4 p.m. Jay Southwood said this year's market will include local artisans, crafters, and a book seller.

18 Residents Have Pulled Nomination Papers

By SCOTT JACKSON

With about six weeks left to qualify for the ballot, 18 residents have pulled papers to run for office in this year's municipal election.

As of 2 p.m. on May 26, incumbent Councillor at-large Nina Liang, a Grandview Avenue resident, was the most recent person to take out nomination papers, having done so on May 17. She joined fellow incumbent Councillor at-large Noel DiBona of Chickatabot Road, who had previously pulled nomination papers to run for a new term.

The third incumbent, Councillor at-large Anne Mahoney, had yet to take out papers to seek reelection as of the afternoon of May 26.

Five of the city's six ward councillors have also taken out nomination papers to run for reelection. They are: Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy of Whitney Road, Ward 2 Councillor Anthony Andronico of Nicholl Street, Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain of Forbes Hill Road, Ward 4 Councillor James Devine of Cross Street and Ward 6 Councillor William Harris of Ashworth Road.

Andronico is the only one of those five incumbents facing a potential challenger. Richard Ash of Mound Street has also taken out papers to run for the Ward 2 seat.

The remaining incumbent ward councillor, Charles Phelan Jr. of Ward 5, has announced he will not be running for reelection in the fall. Two residents have pulled papers to run for that open seat, Richard Iacobucci of Adams Street and Daniel Minton, a resident of Sims Road and retired Quincy police lieutenant.

City councillors are elected to two-year terms.

Six residents have pulled papers to run for School Committee.

They include all three incumbents whose seats will be contested this year — Paul Bregoli of Willow Avenue, Kathryn Hubley of Marion Street, and Frank Santoro of Lois Terrace — as well as challengers Kathryn Campbell of Cranch Street, Courtney Perdios of Ruggles Street and Liberty Schaaf of Howe Street. Perdios had been appointed to an open seat on the committee in 2021 and finished fourth in that year's municipal election. Schaaf also ran in 2021, finishing in fifth place.

School Committee members serve staggered four-year terms, meaning three seats are on the ballot every two years.

A preliminary election would be required in the School Committee race if seven candidates qualify for the ballot. That preliminary election, and any others, would be held on Aug. 29 and the final election is slated for Nov. 7.

A potential race is also shaping up for mayor between incumbent Thomas Koch of Newbury Avenue and challenger James Maloney of East Squantum Street. Koch was first elected in 2007 and is the longest-serving chief executive in city history.

Nomination papers have been available since May 2. The deadline to return them to the Board of Registrars is 5 p.m. on July 11 and certified nomination papers, including a statement of candidacy, must be submitted to the city clerk by 5 p.m. on July 25. The deadline for objections to or withdrawals of nomination papers is 5 p.m. on July 27.

The signatures of 50 registered voters are required to run for each office in a municipal election. Residents seeking one of the six ward councillor seats must obtain the signatures from within their ward.

As of May 26, Harris, Koch and Perdios had all returned nomination papers with at least 50 certified signatures to election officials.

Lance Cpl. Christopher Donahue Square Dedicated

Intersection Of Parke Avenue And Standish Road In Squantum

By SCOTT JACKSON

Days away from what would have been his 73rd birthday, the intersection of Parke Avenue and Standish Road in Squantum was dedicated in memory of Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Christopher Donahue, who was killed in the Vietnam War.

"The Marine Corps motto is 'Semper Fidelis,' 'Always Faithful,' and I think this morning is evidence that Squantum and the city of Quincy is always faithful as well," said Joseph Dunford, the retired Marine Corps general and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, during the ceremony on May 20.

"Although it is more than 50 years ago that we lost Christopher Donahue, we never forgot. I heard someone say once that no one is really lost as long as his memory is there, and today the memory of Christopher Donahue, and the neighborhood he grew up in, is here."

Donahue was born on May 24, 1950. In February 1968, during his senior year at North Quincy High School, Donahue enlisted in the Marine Corps and he was deployed to Vietnam on Veterans Day of that year. He had been assigned to C Battery, 1st Battalion, 11th Marines, 1st Marine Division.

Donahue was killed on May 19, 1969 – six months after being sent to Vietnam and five days shy of his 19th birthday. He was interred 12 days later in the veterans' lot at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Though he was killed decades ago, Donahue's family and members of the Nickerson Post never forget him, said George Bouchard, the city's graves registration officer.

"Although it will be 54 years this May 31 since his burial here in the city he loved, his family and friends at Post 382 never gave up hope [of] honoring him in some way. He now has a place he calls home," Bouchard said. "Welcome home, Christopher Donahue. What a beautiful island."

Mayor Thomas Koch also credited members of Nickerson Post, including past commander Jim Doherty, for leading the effort to memorialize Donahue.

"We're here to remember, we're here to tell the story of Mr. Donahue," Koch said. "I thank Jimmy Doherty, the Nickerson Post members, for really pushing this, putting this program together, to honor one of their own. I'm grateful for that."

Dunford said it was important to not only remember the sacrifice made by Donahue, but to also recognize Vietnam veterans – many of whom were present at the dedication – for both their service while in the military and for their commitment to honor those who served after them.

"I came on active duty in 1977, so the Vietnam veterans were my drill instructors. They were my first company commanders I had. The first battalion commanders I had. I watched the Vietnam veterans rebuild the US military in the late 1970s into the organization that we're all proud of today," Dunford said.

"They bear a special thanks also for the fact that we do events like this. When the Vietnam veterans came home, to include those who served with Christopher Donahue, there weren't events like this in the neighborhood. People didn't stop for a few minutes just to say, 'thank you.'"

"And the Vietnam veterans thought, 'this is not right,' so when successive generations went off to serve and they went home, they were typically greeted with a warm welcome and a 'thank you for your service.' More often than not, the individual that was saying thank you for your service was wearing a ballcap that said Vietnam veteran."

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. CHRISTOPHER DONAHUE

James Flaherty, a fellow Marine Corps veteran of the Vietnam War, was the guest speaker at the dedication. Flaherty noted several parallels between himself and Donahue. Both attended North Quincy High School – Flaherty was one year ahead of Donahue – both enlisted at the age of 18, and both had brothers who also served in the Marine Corps during the war. Flaherty also noted that Donahue's unit provided ground transportation and artillery fire support in the same provinces where his unit was on patrol, though Flaherty did not know it at the time.

"What does this all really mean? I like to think it means we're all connected somehow through our shared experiences and memories," Flaherty said. "Here we are 54 years later talking about Chris, and hopefully 54 years from now someone will look at this marker, go online, read about Chris Donahue and say a prayer for him."

"We had strong bonds with our brother marines, and we watched out for each other. We believed life was precious and we relied on each other for support. We also cherished our friends, family, faith and a good laugh at our own expense."

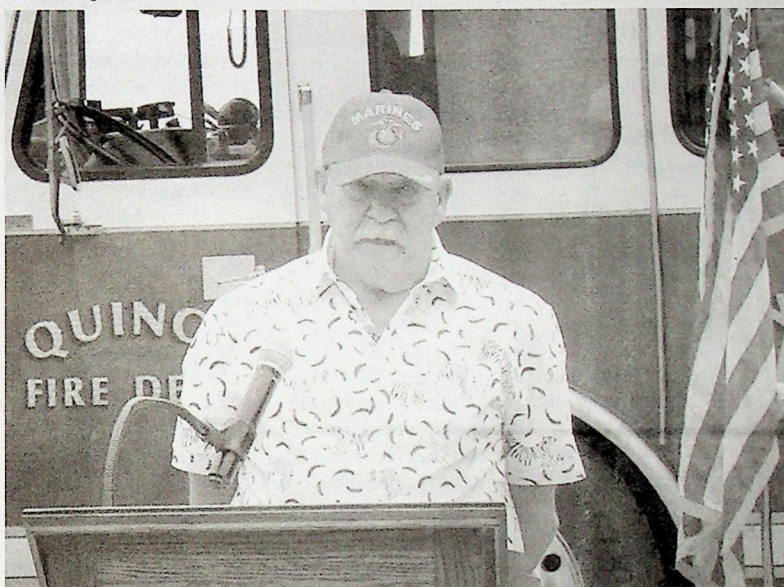

With Memorial Day approaching, Flaherty said it was important to remember not only the nation's fallen service members, but also their families.

"With Memorial Day

CHRISTOPHER DONAHUE SQUARE was dedicated in Squantum on May 20. A lance corporal in the Marine Corps, Donahue was killed in Vietnam in May 1969, days away from his 19th birthday. The memorial square is located at the intersection of Parke Avenue and Standish Road in Squantum.

MICHAEL DONAHUE, brother of the late Christopher Donahue, was among those who spoke during the square dedication on May 20. "Thank you all for being here and for remembering our brother and my best friend," he said.

so close, we remember not just the fallen soldiers, but also their families and loved ones. The day is reminder of the sacrifices made by those who served," Flaherty said.

"So today, please share a memory of Chris, a photo, a video, participate in activities Chris enjoyed and visit places like Chris's family home, the beautiful square we're dedicating today, the Vietnam clocktower, the crab tree at Memorial Park. Maybe take a walk around Squaw Rock...Chris was very found of going to Squaw Rock, as most of us were at North Quincy High School."

Michael Donahue, Christopher's brother who likewise served in the Marine Corps, recited a poem their mother had written after Christopher's death.

"My mom passed away a while ago – she loved and missed Chris until the end," Michael said after finishing the poem. "As we do losing a brother or a sister in a life-altering experience, there isn't a day that goes by after 54 years that he hasn't been in my thoughts."

"Thank you all for being here and for remembering our brother and my best friend."

Doherty, of the Nickerson Post, said the organization would always take care of the newly dedicated memorial square.

"To the Donahue family, this was unbelievable. We waited a long time, and this means a lot to us," Doherty said. "We're going to cherish this thing...and we'll always take care of it for him and he will be remembered forever."

The Marina Bay Ferry/Winthrop Valkyrie resumed service Tuesday (May 30).

Mayor Thomas P. Koch said the City of Quincy is again partnering with the Town of Winthrop to provide ferry service from Quincy to Winthrop and Boston. Ferry service will include water transportation to and from Squantum Point Park/Marina Bay, the Town of Winthrop, Boston Seaport and the New England Aquarium on Winthrop's 74 passenger "Valkyrie" Ferry.

"The ferry service offers early morning commuters as well as tourists another form of transportation between Quincy and Boston. The City of Quincy is happy to continue the long-standing partnership with the town of Winthrop to offer this service," Koch said.

The newly designed MBFerry.com website provides details on how to buy tickets, schedule times and dates as well as suggested destinations and tourist sights at each destination.

"By working with our neighboring communities, we open up a new resource for transportation that alleviates stress on other transit options," said state Sen. John Keenan. Former Quincy Lions Club President Needs Kidney

Ernest Falbo Searching for Living Donor

Ernest ('Ernie') Falbo, president of the Lions Club of Quincy from 1995 - 1996, and former long-time Quincy resident (1973-2011), needs a new kidney. Diagnosed with Stage IV kidney disease in 2019, his condition has declined over the last few years and severely restricts his quality of life.

The Lions Club of Quincy is helping to raise awareness of Ernie's plight and encourage people to participate in the testing program to determine a possible match. Working closely with the National Kidney Registry, or NKR (kidneyregistry.org), Ernie is telling his story on the NKR's website to help himself as well as others in his situation.

Falbo was honored in 2009 with the Melvin Jones Fellow award presented by the Lions Clubs International Foundation for Dedicated Humanitarian Services, as well as with the Lions Club of Quincy's President's Appreciation Award in recognition of outstanding dedication and service.

Falbo has been married to his 'best friend' for 48 years, Karen Lundsgaard, and is the proud father of a daughter, three sons, and two grandsons. He retired from the West Publishing Company after having practiced law in Quincy, and is a graduate of Boston University School of Law and Providence College. He enjoys long walks, participating in activities with family, reading and doing yard work. Ernie also has his pilot's license and is an experienced sailor.

Ernie's life has changed dramatically due to Stage IV kidney disease. Over time, his disease has progressed to the point that he is no longer able to participate in daily activities and experiences constant fatigue. His long-term treatment options are limited to ongoing dialysis or, because of his age, a living donor transplant.

Ernie acknowledges, "Asking you to consider donating a kidney to me is extremely difficult, but to do so would throw a lifeline to me or someone else in my shoes. I would be humbled and eternally grateful..."

According to the National Kidney Registry, the best possible scenario for anyone needing a kidney is a direct match. NKR also offers a paired kidney exchange and voucher program whereby the transplant recipient receives a voucher for the best suitable match from available donations, but only after a kidney is donated on the person's behalf. The donated kidney goes to a suitable recipient with the best match. In short, even if Ernie does not receive the exact kidney intended for him, the organ goes to another person in need. Ernie is then able to receive another donated kidney that is the best possible match for him.

Anyone interested in seeing if they are eligible to donate should contact the National Kidney Registry at <https://www.kidneyregistry.org/for-donors/am-i-qualified-to-donate-a-kidney/>.

The site also contains clear and valuable information about kidney donation and in addition, Ernie's specific story: <https://nkr.org/SCL892>

The National Kidney Registry (kidneyregistry.org) is the leader in paired exchange transplantation and has facilitated more paired exchange transplants than any other organization in the world. The National Kidney Registry is a non-profit organization with the mission to save and improve the lives of people facing kidney failure by increasing the quality, speed, and number of living donor transplants in the world.

The Lions Club of Quincy is a 501(c)(3) registered charity (Tax Exempt Number: 04-336189491), and is part of a world-wide, non-political service organization with significant impact on local and global causes, involving the visually-impaired and educational advancement. Lt. Gov. Driscoll Guest Speaker Quincy Elks Scholarship Ceremony

The Quincy Lodge of Elks #943, under the leadership of Exalted Ruler Sean McArdle, will recognize more than 20 college-bound high school seniors as part of their annual Elks Scholars program on Wednesday, June 21. This year's guest speaker is Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Kim Driscoll.

Scholarship winners from Quincy and across the south shore are invited to attend the ceremony, along with their families. Also invited are officers, trustees and members of the Quincy Elks, as well as Quincy city and state officials. The ceremony will be held in the Tirrell Room beginning at 6 p.m.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers, the chairman of the Elks Scholarship committee, said the Elks are excited to host Driscoll in Quincy for the evening.

"The Lt. Governor is part

of a dynamic new team in the corner office, and we're happy to welcome her and hear from her during the ceremony," Ayers said. "As a former mayor of Salem, Lt. Gov. Driscoll is very familiar with the impact fraternal organizations like the Quincy Elks have on a community."

Ayers praised this year's class of scholarship recipients, which he said was selected based on their academic and extracurricular success.

"We're proud to recognize some outstanding students from Quincy and across the South Shore," Ayers said. "Thanks to the leadership of Exalted Ruler Sean McArdle and his officers and trustees, along with the generosity of the more than 1,600 members of the Quincy Elks, we can help these students financially as they further their academic endeavors."

This year's class of scholarship recipients includes students from 8 different high schools, including Quincy and North Quincy.

Ayers recognized the Elks for all they do to support continuing education. "The Quincy Lodge of Elks give so much back to the community," he said. "Whether it's through youth support programs; veterans' services; holiday food basket drives; senior activities; or the scholarship program, the Elks are always willing to volunteer their time for the betterment of others."

Nationwide, the Elks are the second-largest provider of financial assistance for continuing education, behind only the United States Government. Over the last decade, the Quincy Lodge of Elks has distributed more than $200,000 in scholarship assistance to local students.

ENC, DegreeSight Partnership For Online Transcript Evaluation Tool

DegreeSight, a provider of online transcript evaluation and degree planner tools for colleges and universities, and Eastern Nazarene College recently announced the integration of a new ENC Online Transcript Evaluator.

This partnership will not only help incoming students receive an unofficial evaluation of how their previous college courses fit in at the college, but it will also assist the admissions office in the ongoing enrollment process.

"Now when a prospective student visits our website and wants to know how their college credits will transfer to ENC, they can find out instantly, and our team knows they were there and can reach out to offer any additional assistance," says Dr. Tim Rees, vice president for Enrollment Management. "The great thing is that this helps not only transfer students, but incoming freshmen as well because many of them are coming to ENC with college credit from high school. An additional benefit of this tool is that it calculates tuition savings a student has earned by completing coursework prior to attending ENC."

Integrating DegreeSight in the ENC enrollment process further streamlines the college's admissions process for incoming undergraduates and maintains the reputation as one of the nation's most transfer-friendly colleges.

"Their generosity and spirit are extraordinary, and we are so grateful to the Quincy Firefighters for their heroic efforts and dedication to the community."

there was a dedication in Squantum for Christopher Donahue who died while fighting in the Vietnam War in 1969.

"Seeing the family sitting there crying after 54 years says a lot about the family, this city, and the veterans who didn't come home," he said.

Bouchard said he asked himself what the meaning of Flags for Veterans Island is. "It means for people like that (Donahue)," he said. "The average person who fought for this country."

Bouchard noted that veterans who fought in each war the country was involved in over the past decades were met with different greetings upon returning home.

"In World War II, they came home and were the Greatest Generation," he said. "Most people said they saved the country. They didn't. They saved the world from destruction and evil. A few years later, they went to Korea and came home as the Forgotten War. Who forgets war?"

"Some went to Vietnam and came home to nothing, unwanted," he continued. "It took 54 years to get a thank you. Now we have Iraq, Afghanistan, and the

Retired Teachers Award $120,400 In Scholarships To 43 Graduating Seniors

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association (QRTA) recently held their 42nd scholarship awards event. Congratulations to 43 graduating seniors from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools who were awarded a total of $120,400 in scholarships which will be used to support each student's educational goals. Since its inception, the QRTA Scholarship Fund has granted over 1000 scholarships to graduating seniors, totaling close to $3 million.

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association Scholarship Fund was established in 1978 by a bequest of $1,000 from the estate of Warren B. Findlay, a math teacher who retired from Quincy High School. Since the 1980s, the fund has grown from many bequests and memorial contributions honoring and remembering retired Quincy educators. Many of these are from retired teachers, their families and friends. Over the years, the donations have grown to comprise a multimillion-dollar trust fund. Students receive scholarships from the interest earned on that fund.

Each year, qualifying seniors at both North Quincy High and Quincy High (including Career & Technical Education) receive QRTA scholarships. Students apply for these scholarships through their respective high school guidance department. Recipients are chosen by a Scholarship Committee at each high school. The QRTA asks each Scholarship Committee to consider high academic or technical achievement, desirable character traits, financial need and active participation in school or community activities when choosing the scholarship recipients.

Contributions are welcome in any amount: Quincy Retired Teachers Scholarship Fund, Office of the Superintendent of Schools, c/o Laura Owens, 34 Coddingdon St., Quincy, MA 02169.

QArts Gallery Honors Life, Legacy Of Kelly Cobble

The Quincy Art Association, the Cobble family, friends, and co-workers, gathered at the QArts Gallery to celebrate Kelly Cobble on May 19.

Kelly Cobble passed away suddenly in March 2022. She was past president of the QAA and held many other titles over the long span of keeping the arts alive in the city of Quincy. She was president and long-time member of Altrusa International. Co-workers from the National Parks Department, friends and city officials shared endearing stories about a woman who meant so much to so many.

Mayor Tom Koch spoke on Kelly's service to the city and unveiled a commemorative plaque in Kelly's honor, permanently installed in the gallery. Kelly was a driving force and advocate for the gallery, now open for more than a year and a half.

Linda Santoro, a close friend of Kelly's and the evening's event organizer, presented a duplicate of the plaque to Isabella Cobble for the family. Another duplicate is installed at the QAA Art Center where Kelly spent much of her time organizing classes and other community art activities.

Linda Santoro addressed the gathering of more than 60 people saying "the QAA would like to thank the Cobble family for their generosity in creating a scholarship in Kelly's name that will help students pursuing the arts in their continuing education at both Quincy High and North Quincy High Schools. Kelly was passionate about many things. Everything Kelly did was with great gusto, a lover of life, she filled up a room when she entered."

"She was a soldier on the front lines of the Quincy Art Association and many other worthwhile organizations and had a way of recruiting others by drawing them into her causes which would become theirs. It is because of her perseverance and Mayor Koch's commitment to the arts that we stand in this beautiful space tonight to honor her."

Kelly was also passionate about literature and literacy, and as a member of Altrusa International, Quincy Chapter, she was involved with many projects, services, and fundraisers that made a difference in Quincy. Close friend and Altrusa president Rebecca Egan presented a scholarship donation in Kelly's name to the Quincy Art Association. Another presentation was made by Patty Smith, Museum Technician of the Adams National Historical Park, to Kelly's daughter, Isabella, of a certificate acknowledging Kelly's 25 years of service to the United States of America, as Curator, U.S. Department of Interior, of the Adams National Park.

The ceremony concluded with guests recalling examples of Kelly's character, leadership, and her sense of humor. After the ceremony, the crowd dispersed into smaller groups. Conversations about Kelly could be heard at the celebration. A wonderful buzz of love and laughter filled the gallery as we remembered Kelly Cobble.

Kelly's plaque reads: "In Loving Memory of Kelly P. Cobble. Stand up for your community, live without regret, and always share your love with others. The Quincy Art Association is forever indebted to Kelly's passion and commitment for the arts, for without which it would not exist and grow. Kelly is sadly missed by all who knew and loved her."

Gallery Hours: Saturday and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. The QArts Gallery is managed and operated by volunteer members of the Quincy Art Association. The gallery is located at 1229 Hancock St., Quincy, (across from Quincy College). Email: info@quincyartma.org.

North Quincy's Zach Taylor Honored By Mass. Basketball Coaches Association Division 2 Player Of The Year For 2023

North Quincy basketball standout Zach Taylor is the 2023 Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association Division 2 Player of the Year for 2023. The 6-2 senior forward received the award at the MBCA's annual awards ceremony, held May 21 at The College of the Holy Cross in Worcester.

Head coach Kevin Barrett and Zach's parents-Joe and Donna Taylor proudly accompanied Zach to the breakfast event. The statewide recognition caps a long list of individual honors Taylor has received since leading the Raiders to 16-7 record, an outright Patriot League title (14-2 league record) and a round of 16 appearance in the MIAA Division II state tournament.

Following his dominant, historic season, Taylor was a unanimous pick as Patriot League Fisher MVP. His 573 points and 24.9 average were each second best in program history. He reached double figures in every game and eclipsed 30 points five times. His shooting percentage was a gaudy 58%. Taylor's point total represented 43% of the Raiders' total for the year, according to assistant coach and statistician Martin Dunham.

It's no surprise that Taylor made a clean sweep of all-scholastic placements: The Boston Globe, The Boston Herald and The Patriot Ledger.

"What's most amazing is that Zach accomplished all of this while being the focal point of every opponent's defense," noted Barrett, adding that Taylor plans to play at Bridgewater State University next year.

NQ Boys' Volleyball Tops Wayland

By TOM JOYCE

It was a hard-fought match, but the North Quincy High boys' volleyball team prevailed.

The Raiders hosted Wayland High May 24 and recovered after dropping a tight first set. The Raiders went on to win the next three, taking the game, 3-1. With the win, the Raiders improved to 16-3 on the season.

"I saw us make adjustments a little bit quicker, and we didn't back down," Raiders head coach Megan Johnston said. "We remained focused. We worked on not letting teams getting big runs - like a kid serving three or four in a row. We continue to work on our position in blocking because that sets the tone for where our defense is and just the focus - the mental game."

The Raiders had an edge late in the first set, but Wayland made a comeback. Kills from Bobby Lin and Cameron Johnston gave the Raiders a four-point lead, 19-15. However, after that, Wayland took six of the next eight points to tie things at 21 apiece.

Neither side could gain a clear edge over the next several points. The Raiders tied the set at 27 apiece thanks to a serving error against Wayland. Yet, Wayland scored back-to-back points after that, taking the set 29-27. Wayland's final point of the set came on a spike.

The Raiders improved their chances of winning in the second set. Trailing 4-3 early in the set, they went on a 5-0 run and protected their lead for the duration of the second set. A kill from Johnston, an ace from Liam Bailey, a block from Lin and Anthony Chiu, a hitting error against Wayland, and a point from Nate Caldwell gave the team an 8-4 edge.

The Raiders not only protected this lead, but they also expanded it. An ace from Caldwell later in the set put the team up 20-13. Plus, the Raiders ended the set on a 3-0 run that included a kill from Chiu and an ace from Johnston; the Raiders took this set 25-17.

The Raiders also took the third set, 25-19. Although they trailed 4-1 early in the set, the Raiders fought back. They tied the set at seven apiece on a kill from Dylan Clifford. It was part of a 5-1 run that gave the team an 11-8 edge. Clifford also had a hit that Wayland could not return to cap off the run.

While much of the set was highly competitive, the Raiders pulled away, in the end, thanks to a 4-1 run.

A spike from Johnston, a hitting error against Wayland, and a kill from Caldwell gave the Raiders a 24-18 edge. A serving error against the Raiders then gave Wayland a point. However, Johnston capped off the set with another spike.

The Raiders also took the fourth and final set of the game 25-19.

Two aces from Caldwell, a hitting error against Wayland, and a kill from Johnston gave the Raiders an early 4-0 edge in the set.

Shortly after, the Raiders extended their lead to 8-2 thanks to a quick 3-0 run. On it, Wayland committed two hitting errors, and Lin had a spike, giving the Raiders a six-point edge. As the set progressed, Wayland, at times, was able to reduce that deficit. There were a couple of instances where Wayland only trailed by three points. However, the Raiders preserved that lead and had another six-point win in the final set.

The match against Wayland was the Raiders' penultimate game of the regular season. They finished their schedule with a 3-0 win over O'Bryant May 25 (17-3 overall record) and will next compete in the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association's postseason tournament. The tournament will likely begin next week.

"I think we're excited and starting to feel prepared," Coach Johnston said. "We added five non-league teams to our schedule, higher power ranking teams, so we feel like those games especially added to our preparation. Our last two games were part of that, and we won them, so that was exciting. We learned some lessons in the games we lost, the three non-league games. We know what we need to work on in terms of preparation."

"I hope we stay healthy," she added. "We started the season without Cameron without six games, and some kids had to step up and fill the hole. You want everyone to stay healthy, so you have that depth - which we built in those first six games."

The Raiders have an experienced team this season, with eight seniors.

NQ Baseball Edged By Scituate, 1-0

By TOM JOYCE

It was a pitchers' duel, and Kevin Pritchard was excellent.

The starting pitcher for the North Quincy High baseball team excelled in the team's home game against the Scituate Sailors May 25. Although Pritchard threw well, Scituate also got a great performance from their starting pitcher. Ultimately, the Raiders dropped a tight 1-0 ballgame that went into extra innings. With the loss, the Raiders finished their regular season at 9-13.

Scituate got its run in the top of the eighth. Raiders third baseman Charlie Ambroult got the first out of the frame, cleanly fielding a bunt. The next batter smacked a double, and with two outs in the inning, a Scituate batter legged out an infield single; the single advanced the other runner to third base. Scituate capitalized on this chance; it knocked in a run on a play that involved a couple of infield errors. After that run, the Raiders pulled Pritchard and gave Alex Montero the ball. Montero induced a groundout to end the inning. Pritchard pitched 7.2 innings and allowed just one run while striking out four batters.

The Raiders' offense showed some life in the bottom of the eighth, but Scituate prevented them from scoring and secured the win. David D'Antona led things off with a single up the middle. However, the next batter grounded into a double play. With two outs, Charlie Baker reached base after drawing a walk. With Baker on first, a flyout ended the inning and the game.

In the first seven innings, neither team scored.

The Raiders got some solid offensive contributions and showed their speed on the basepaths, but were unable to cross home plate. Vinny O'Leary hit a single and stole two bases in the bottom of the first, and Montero singled and stole a base in the bottom of the second. However, the Raiders were unable to knock either runner in once they reached scoring position.

Additionally, the Raiders also had a runner reach scoring position in the fifth and sixth innings.

Ambroult was hit by a pitch with one out in the bottom of the fifth. A clean sacrifice bunt from Kyle DeBoer pushed him over to second base, but a groundout ended the inning.

An inning later, Baker singled up the middle with one out, the next batter walked, and a flyout to center field by John Toland advanced Baker to third base. However, the next batter

OBITUARIES

Shayne Murray, 36

Shayne Murray – friend, musician, librarian, and brother – died unexpectedly on Wednesday, May 24, 2023, at Landmark Medical Center in Woonsocket, Rhode Island. He was 36 years old.

The son of the late Thomas E. and Sandra E. (Cyrus) Murray, Shayne is survived by his sister Vanessa Murray of Holbrook, MA. He is also survived by his many aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Born in Quincy, Massachusetts, Shayne lived most of his life in the Hough's Neck neighborhood. A great lover of the outdoors, Shayne preferred to travel by bike or on foot. He enjoyed visiting locally owned mom-and-pop coffee shops. He loved music and martial arts. He also loved to travel and had recently returned from a trip to Europe.

A 2012 graduate of Bridgewater State University with a degree in Philosophy and Politics, Shayne found his professional calling when he was hired as a library assistant at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy in the fall of 2013.

In the course of his 10-year career, Shayne quickly moved from part to full-time, and in 2019, Shayne received his Master's Degree in Library Science from Simmons University in Boston.

Shayne was a favorite with patrons who found him personable as well as helpful and who appreciated his wide-ranging taste in literature. Among staff, Shayne stood out for his huge work ethic, reliability, and initiative.

Among friends, Shayne will be remembered for his kindness and loyalty; unconventional and thought-provoking opinions; and interest in new ideas. Shayne was also that rare person who simply showed up when you needed his help—whether to plant a garden, move furniture, or get someone to a doctor's appointment or to the grocery store.

Outside of work, Shayne was a long-time musician who played a mean set of drums in several bands—and whose face lit up when it came to a discussion about the local music scene.

Shayne's family and friends will always remember Shayne for his "best ever smile"—and the joy he found in simple pleasures like a sunny day and a cool breeze off the ocean.

In the end, as an organ donor, Shayne gave to others what he himself missed—the gift of a longer life.

Services for Shayne have been entrusted to the care of the Berarducci Funeral Home, Woonsocket RI and will be held at later date. You can visit the website at ProvidenceCremation.com.

Cybersecurity Tips From Better Business Bureau

The Better Business Bureau offers cybersecurity tips for travelers to keep cell phones, laptops, tablets, and other devices, as well as the information stored on them, safe and secure.

- Only take what you need. Do you need your cell-phone, tablet, and your laptop? Limit yourself to the bare necessities, remembering that any devices you take with you will need looking after.

- Keep an eye on your stuff. Never leave your devices unattended or in the care of a stranger. If you need to leave them in your hotel room, consider locking them in a safe or in your luggage. If you need another latte while catching up on remote work at a local coffee shop, take your laptop to the counter instead of leaving it on the table. This will keep your information and device safe from prying eyes and thieves waiting for their next opportunity.

- Be careful about how you charge up. Portable chargers or wall outlets are preferable if you need to charge your device in a public space like a coffee shop or an airport. If you must use a public USB port, avoid potential "juice jacking" by choosing to charge only - without sharing data - when prompted by your device.

- Check your settings. Adjust your settings to prepare for travel. Turn off the auto-join feature to avoid connecting to shady Wi-Fi hotspots as you travel. Turn on the "find my phone" feature so you can track your device if it gets lost and disable it if it's stolen. Check the privacy and security settings on apps and web services, and adjust them if needed.

- Always enable password protection. Make sure your devices require a password to unlock them. Use a strong password, PIN, fingerprint, or facial scan to ensure a stranger can't unlock your device.

- Keep your antivirus up to date. Before you leave, ensure your antivirus software is up to date on all your devices. Once you return home, run a scan to make sure you didn't pick up any malware during your travels.

- Back up your files. Back up your photos, files, and any other important digital data you have before and during your trip. That way, you won't lose your valuable information if your device gets lost or stolen.

- If you stream, don't forget to log out. If you log into any streaming service while away from home, log out before leaving. If you stay signed in, the next visitor to the space can not only use your subscription; they can even access admin controls to change your password or get a hold of your payment information. If you realize you didn't log out after you arrived home, don't panic. Visit the streaming service online, head to your account settings, and choose the option that allows you to log out on all devices.

- Use secure Wi-Fi networks. Think twice before using public Wi-Fi networks, especially if they aren't password protected. Never make a purchase or login into accounts while on public Wi-Fi. Bad actors could be "eavesdropping" on your connection, waiting for you to reveal sensitive, personal information. Wait until you can access a secure network to carry out important transactions.

Sheriff Warns Residents Of Dating App Scam

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is warning residents to be vigilant against a new scam targeting users of online dating apps, with scammers impersonating law enforcement investigators in an attempt to extort money from app users.

In a recent attempted extortion scheme, an area resident user of the dating app "Coffee Meets Bagel" exchanged numbers with a person he assumed was a Norfolk County resident. He then received a call from a person who identified himself as an investigator with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and stated that the woman on the dating app was a minor who attempted to harm herself after her parents discovered the relationship.

The scammer then told the man that the matter could be resolved if he agreed to pay for medical bills totaling over $11,000. The man also reported that he had been receiving text messages from numbers purporting to be the woman's family members asking him to cover these medical expenses.

Suspicious of the interactions, the man contacted the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office to report the scam and confirm that the Sheriff's Office does not ask for payments from residents or facilitate payments between parties.

"Scammers are skilled at preying on our emotional vulnerabilities in order to separate us from our money. Sometimes this is by preying on our relationships with others, our fears about the future, or threatening us with seemingly intense consequences," said Sheriff McDermott. "If you are ever asked to give out personal information, money, or access to someone who you do not know or have not met, you should always cut off contact and immediately contact your local law enforcement."

In addition to the "Coffee Meets Bagel" scam, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office reports that a similar scam has been reported on the dating site Bumble. The Sheriff's Office warns residents to be careful about giving out personal information or contact information on these sites. In addition to the dangers of scammers, revealing personal information such as your address can also put users at danger of being harmed. Before meeting with someone you met through an online app or website, be sure to tell someone where you are going and, if possible, share your location with them.

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD – It's been 20 years since Jamie Lee Curtis and Lindsey Lohan made "Freaky Friday," (2003). The story about a mother and daughter whose bodies are switched was funny when Curtis was 44 and Lohan was 16. Now, they're 64 and 36, how freaky can that Friday be? Winning a supporting actress Oscar (for "Everything Everywhere All at Once") can make all your wishes come true, and Disney is anxious to utilize her fame. She's already completed the $158 million horror/comedy, "The Haunted Mansion," with Tiffany Haddish, Owen Wilson, Danny DeVito, Rosario Dawson, Dan Levy and Jared Leto, (the second to feature their Haunted Mansion attraction), hits theaters July 28th. Curtis also wrapped the sci-fi action/comedy, "Borderlands," costarring heavyweights Cate Blanchett, Kevin Hart and Jack Black.

Lindsey Lohan mounted a successful comeback last year (after a period which included jail and bad press) when she revived her career with the successful Netflix rom/com, "Falling For Christmas," opposite Chord Overstreet and Jack Wagner. It did so well she's currently filming a Netflix fantasy/rom-com, "Irish Wish," with Ed Speleers (Jimmy Kent in "Downton Abbey," Stephen Bonnett in "Outlander" and Jack Crusher in "Star Trek: Picard") and "Dr. Quinn" star, Jane Seymour. Lohan's younger sister, Aliana, (28), had a role in "Falling For Christmas" and her younger brother, Dakota, (26), is in "Irish Wish." Another Netflix rom-com is also being prepped.

The long-awaited sequel to "Beetlejuice," (the 1988 classic that grossed $75 million), has been greenlit as "Beetlejuice 2" and will again star Michael Keaton, be directed by Tim Burton and feature Justin Theroux, (who scored with HBO's "White House Plumbers," opposite Woody Harrelson) as his co-star. It's set for September 2024.

Director Guy Ritchie's hedging his bets by casting three superheroes for his upcoming action film. Jake Gyllenhaal, (of "The Spider-Man" franchise), Henry Cavill, ("The Man of Steel's" Superman) and Eiza Gonzalez, (of "Fast & Furious: Hobbs & Shaw" have all worked with Ritchie before but, as usual, he hasn't revealed the title for this big budget action picture yet.

Mix Tom Hiddleston, (of the "Thor" franchise), Mark Hamill, (of the "Star Wars" franchise) and the genius of Stephen King, in an adaption of his "The Life Of Chuck" book and you've got a sure fire hot property for sale during The Cannes Film Festival. Based on King's 2020 short story anthology, "If It Bleeds, The Life Of Chuck," that links three separate stories telling the biography of Charles Krantz in reverse, beginning with his death, from a brain tumor, at 30 and ending with his childhood in a supposedly haunted house. It'll be the first time we prey for a happy beginning since Benjamin Button!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Advertising Art – Advertising and store collectibles have historical significance and brand recognition as well as artistic value. A combination of all three brought this lamp a price of $2,700 at Morford's Antique Advertising Auctions. The lamp was made by Fenton, a well-known art glass company. Its bell-shaped blue shade for Bell Telephone Co. is eye-catching. The inscription "Local and Long Distance Telephone" marks it as a relic of the past.

There is little need for public telephones today when most people carry a phone with them and can get service wherever they go. But even before the age of cell-phones, people liked having access to a telephone anywhere they went. This lamp probably hung in a hotel lobby to let visitors know there was a telephone available.

Q: Plastic and metal lunchboxes from the 1960s and 1970s really interest me. I have a Holly Hobbie lunchbox with thermos that I carried in grade school. Are lunchboxes hot collectibles?

A: Collectible lunchboxes bring back childhood memories of favorite television shows, movies, cartoons, sports teams and musical groups. Holly Hobbie (1944) is an American writer and illustrator whose artwork sometimes appears on lunchboxes. She is the author of the popular "Toot and Puddle" children's books and creator of the character bearing her name. In the early 1970s, Hobbie sold artwork of a cat-loving, rag-dress-wearing little girl in a giant bonnet to American Greetings. This series of illustrations became immensely popular, and her originally nameless character became known as "Holly Hobbie." Your lunchbox, if authentic, is worth about $40.

TIP: Learn the dates of business cards and other advertising from telephone numbers. Numbers were first used in 1878. The seven-digit number was in use by the 1940s; fewer than seven digits date the card from 1878 to the 1940s. From the 1920s to the 1950s, most urban areas had a two-letter "exchange" followed by numbers.

Strange BUT TRUE

• In a study to improve hospital design for children, researchers polled 250 kids about their opinions on clowns. The verdict was unanimous: Every single one reported disliking or fearing them. Well, so do some adults.

• A Texas woman named Verda Byrd, adopted by a Black family in the 1940s, only discovered she was white after finding her adoption papers in 2013.

• In 1987, a barge left New York for North Carolina with a whopping 3,168 tons of trash on board. North Carolina didn't want it either, so the barge traveled for seven long months trying (and failing) to find someone to take it, launching a national conversation on the subject of landfills and recycling.

• The town of Dull in Scotland has been twinned with the town of Boring, Oregon, since 2012.

• Because goats can eat poison ivy with no ill effects, some farmers rent out the animals to clear parks, golf courses and historical sites without having to use chemicals or herbicides.

• A nuclear bomb is stuck somewhere in the ice on the coast of Greenland.

• Retired NFL wide receiver Steve Smith left his cleats on the field after every game to raise awareness of homeless people who don't have shoes.

• In 1993, a Missouri man purposely damaged a levee on the Mississippi River to delay his wife coming home from work so he could party. The plan spectacularly backfired when the river flooded 14,000 acres, leading to his arrest and conviction for causing a catastrophe and a life sentence in prison.

• There are cases of identical twins in which only one is born with Down syndrome.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• "Before traveling, I write down the numbers, expiration and contact information for any credit cards I plan to bring with me. I keep one copy hidden in my luggage, and another is left with a friend back home. This way, if anything happens to my wallet, I can easily call and cancel cards and arrange for replacements." – R.E. in New York

• "When getting ready to entertain, I use sticky notes to organize my serving pieces. For each dish, I make two sticky notes. I label the dishes and set them out on the buffet. When I am satisfied with the arrangement, I remove one sticky note and attach it to the place the dish will remain, and the dish goes to the kitchen, still labeled until it's filled." – W. in Texas

• Lipstick on your linens? Dab with petroleum jelly, then dish soap. Then launder as usual. Be sure the stain is removed before you dry the linens.

• "If you have trouble with your pantyhose, give them a spray with an anti-static spray first. Then put them on. They seem to slide up better, and it's much easier to get a grip on them. Also, it seems to keep them from running as easily." – D.V. in Washington

• A properly clean windshield is not only a good view, it's safer! If your windshield blades still look good but are smearing, wipe them down with a cotton ball soaked in rubbing alcohol. If the cotton pulls off on the blade, it's time to replace. If not, the alcohol will likely clean up that smudge.

• Natural peanut butter fan? Store your jar upside down. The oil will settle to the top, and when you flip it over, it will be less messy to stir. No peanut oil sloshing down the side of the jar!

Q: I really enjoyed a series of movies with Noah Wyle called "The Librarians." I read that it's being turned into a series. Where and when can I watch? — H.H.

A: Noah Wyle ("ER") starred as librarian Flynn Carsen in three separate TV movies beginning in 2004: "Quest of the Spear," "Return to King Solomon's Mines," and "Curse of the Judas Chalice." The action-adventure telefilms were later spun off into a successful weekly series called "The Librarians," which ran for four seasons on TNT with Wyle, Rebecca Romijn ("Star Trek: Strange New Worlds") and John Larroquette ("Night Court").

Now, five years after its cancellation, the CW network has announced that it will launch another series, "The Librarians: The Next Chapter," with original executive producer and showrunner Dean Devlin at the helm. According to "TVInsider," the new version "centers on a 'Librarian' from the past, who time traveled to the present and now finds himself stuck here." There will also be a "new team to help him clean up the mess he made, forming a new team of Librarians."

Due to the ongoing writer's strike and the fact that the show is still in the development stage, it's uncertain whether the show will be part of the CW's fall line-up.

Q: Where have I seen the actress who plays Det. Muncy on "Law & Order: SVU?" Was she ever on a soap? — A.E.

A: If you're a "Days of Our Lives" fan then, yes, you've seen actress Molly Burnett before. She played Melanie Jonas on the NBC (now Peacock) soap from 2008 to 2016. She was also a regular on the USA network series "Queen of the South" before making the leap to "Law & Order: SVU."

Her role as Det. Muncy on "SVU" began as a recurring one before turning into a series regular by the seventh episode of season 24. However, during a crossover episode with "Law & Order: Organized Crime," her character announced that she's leaving for a new assignment on the DEA task force. So far, Burnett hasn't commented on her departure from the show, but hopefully she'll bounce back with a new gig soon.

NBC recently announced that "SVU" will be back for an impressive 25th season this fall, which will solidify stars Mariska Hargitay and Ice-T as the longest running male and female actors in television. Some are speculating whether Burnett's exit might mean they're making room for Kelli Giddish to return as Det. Rollins, but at this stage, it's just speculation.

Noah Wyle starred in "The Librarians" TV movies as well as the weekly spinoff series.

Q: What happened to Christine on the Netflix series "Selling Sunset"? Is she still selling houses? — W.J.

A: After five years as the villain on the real estate reality series "Selling Sunset," Christine Quinn either left or was fired from the Oppenheim Group, the brokerage firm featured on the show. She doesn't appear to miss it, however, hinting that she might someday start her own firm, and she's also said in interviews that she'd like to get back into "scripted" acting again. Her previous credits include parts on "Ballers" and "Drop Dead Diva."

Keep Your Dog Safe From Tick-Borne Infections

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I'm afraid to take my 1-year-old Lab, Shiner, on hikes in the woods because he might be bitten by a tick and get ill. What's your take on the tick situation? — Brian in Concord, New Hampshire

DEAR BRIAN: Even though ticks carrying diseases like Lyme are a concern, do not let the risk put you off of bringing your dog along on hiking adventures. Yes, ticks are numerous, and you live in a hotspot for tick-borne diseases. But there are precautions that you can take to keep both Shiner and yourself healthy.

A Lyme vaccine is available for dogs, so talk to your vet about getting Shiner this shot. But ticks carry other diseases too. So be sure that Shiner wears a flea-and-tick-repellent collar or takes a flea-and-tick (and heartworm) preventative medication.

Keep ticks off of your own skin by treating clothing and gear with permethrin and letting it dry completely before wearing the gear (permethrin should never be applied to your skin). Just before setting out on your hike, spray insect repellent that works on numerous bugs, including ticks and fleas, onto your skin.

After your hike, before getting into the car, check Shiner's coat for ticks and other bugs. Run your hand along his fur from head to tail to dislodge any critters or debris from the top of his coat. Check under his tail and between the pads of his paws. Shake your gear out and do a tick check on yourself as much as possible.

At home, do a more thorough check of Shiner by running your hands into his coat and visually checking his fur and skin. Remove any embedded ticks using a tick removal tool.

"FUBAR" (TV-MA) — Action movie star Arnold Schwarzenegger has a new spy-adventure series premiering May 25, which is the longtime actor's first leading role in a scripted live-action series. Schwarzenegger plays Luke, a recently retired CIA operative who gets sucked into one last, relatively simple mission. The catch? Well, once Luke arrives on site, he realizes his daughter, Emma (Monica Barbaro), also works for the CIA and that the two have been lying to each other for years. Now, as they take on the mission together in a much different way than they expected, their bond as father and daughter truly starts to form. (Netflix)

"The Secrets of Hillsong" (NR) — This four-part documentary series releasing May 20 dives into the scandals surrounding the Christian megachurch Hillsong. The Hillsong Church campus established in New York City aimed to draw in millennials and Gen Zers, mostly due to former lead pastor Carl Lentz's efforts. Lentz then went on to become a spiritual advisor to many celebrities, including Justin Bieber, Kendall Jenner and Selena Gomez, before he was dismissed amid an infidelity scandal. This documentary explores the dark-sided atmosphere attached to Hillsong, with serious allegations of sexual abuse and abuses of power from pastors like Lentz. (Hulu)

"Platonic" (TV-MA) — The duo who led "Neighbors," Rose Byrne and Seth Rogen, are teaming up again — this time for a comedy series. Byrne and Rogen respectively play Sylvia and Will, a pair of best friends who reconnect after years apart. Sylvia's a family woman now, but Will, who just went through a recent divorce, is in an entirely different stage of his life. So, as their friendship takes off again, the two must find the right balance between Will's shenanigans and Sylvia's family to prove that a man and a woman can maintain a platonic relationship. The first three episodes premiere on May 24, with the rest following on a weekly basis. (AppleTV+)

Unbeknownst to Alithea, the antique bottle she purchased contains the Djinn, a genie, inside. Because of these stories, Alithea's lonely heart starts to beat again, and she finds immense purpose with the Djinn's sudden appearance in her life. Opening lead — three of spades.

The key to playing winning bridge lies in exercising good judgement and making as few mistakes as possible. But the nature of the game is such that there are countless opportunities to stray from the straight and narrow. One must therefore be always on guard.

Take this case where West led a spade against three notrump. Declarer played the ten from dummy and won East's queen with the ace. South then led a diamond to the queen, losing to the king. Back came a spade to dummy's jack, and the ace of diamonds was cashed, on which West showed out.

At this point, declarer was in serious trouble. He tried dummy's queen of clubs, but West wisely refused to win, and that was that. South wound up with only seven tricks — three spades, a diamond, a club and two hearts — and finished down two.

Sadly, the fact is that not even an earthquake can stop South from scoring nine tricks if he plays correctly. While he was unlucky to lose the diamond finesse and run into a 4-1 division in the suit, South should have allowed for the worst and not subjected himself to the possibility of ill fortune.

Declarer lost his contract at trick one. Although the spade lead presented him with a "free" finesse, he should have put up dummy's king rather than play the ten. This would assure nine tricks. South would then play the queen of clubs and, if necessary, next overtake the ten with the jack and persist with the suit until the ace was driven out. With the ace of spades still in his hand as an entry, declarer would finish with at least four clubs, two hearts, two spades and a diamond for nine tricks.

All South needed to do was to give up the chance of gaining an extra spade trick in favor of assuring nine tricks by playing dummy's king at the outset.

Nurse Claims Wound Must Heal From the Inside Over Time

DEAR DR. ROACH: Whenever I got a wound while I was young, my mother would take me to the hospital to get stitches. I am now 94. I went to get a wound seen, and the nurse said that it needed to heal from the inside. They treated it with gauze, wrapping and then a stocking. It took months to heal. Why the big change? Why couldn't they have just put in stitches and saved me months of healing? -- D.J.

ANSWER: A wound can be sutured (stitched) closed when it is new, clean and regular. A wound cannot be closed if it is infected or irregular. Most chronic wounds cannot be closed by stitching. Also, if there is a lot of swelling around the wound, there may be so much pressure that the wound cannot be closed and must be allowed to heal over time. This is often the case with larger wounds.

Basic principles of wound healing are to treat and prevent infection by bacteria or other germs, control pain and bleeding, and avoid treatments that are toxic to open wounds. I hear very frequently from people who have mistreated wounds. Strong agents like hydrogen peroxide, iodine, bleach and even soaps will kill more of your body's healing cells than bacteria, and they should not be used in open wounds.

I also hear people say wounds "need air," but wounds heal faster when they are moist. A barrier like petrolatum (Vaseline or many other proper wound-care agents) and a clean cover will accelerate wound healing. Most wounds do not need topical antibiotics, and these should only be used when recommended by an expert. The best experts for wound care are wound-care nurses and, in extreme cases, vascular or plastic surgeons.

It takes time for a wound to heal. How much time depends on many factors, but a time span of months is not unusual, especially with a person in their 90s, who may not have the same blood supply they had when they were much younger.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I take 25 mg of quetiapine at night as a sleeping aid, and one of the side effects is an increase in blood sugar. I am curious if that will also show a rise in my A1C blood work as well? -- T.F.

ANSWER: Quetiapine (Seroquel), an antipsychotic medication that is often used as a sleep aid due to its side effect of sedation, has at least two ways that it can increase blood sugar.

The first is that it directly acts against insulin, causing the body to try to release more insulin. At the same time, it reduces the ability of the body to make insulin. The combination means that in people who don't have much reserve (such as people with prediabetes or diabetes), this will increase their blood sugar. Secondly, the resistance to insulin helps promote weight gain, which worsens the resistance to insulin even more.

Any condition that raises blood glucose significantly for a long enough period will increase the A1C. The A1C measures the amount of sugar on hemoglobin molecules in red blood cells. The higher the blood sugar and the longer it stays high, the higher the A1C level.

A dose of 25 mg of quetiapine is relatively small, so it doesn't usually have these metabolic changes the way that quetiapine used for schizophrenia does -- at the usual dose of 400 to 800 mg daily in adults. Still, I do not prescribe quetiapine as a sleep aid, since I greatly prefer nonmedication treatments such as cognitive-behavioral therapy whenever possible.

DR. ROACH regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.comell.edu.

Decluttering — Do It Your Way

Consider this a firsthand account of clearing clutter. I read several self-help books; I sought advice from those who call themselves experts.

But I suspected that the "how to declutter" books would be a lost cause when I saw passages that suggested taking photos of cherished items as a way of remembering them; I knew that plan was not for me. It was the same with instructions to take it one room at a time or to take months to finish the task.

In the end, I rejected all I heard and read and opted for doing it my way: quickly and ruthlessly.

The key to successful decluttering is to ask yourself realistic questions:

If you're working on clothing and realize that you haven't worn certain items in years, how likely are you to wear them ever again? If you have a set of dishes once owned by your grandmother and have never used it, are you likely to ever use it now? If you're sorting memorabilia from vacations, do you remember the details of your trip?

Give yourself one month to declutter, working at it for at least an hour every day, boxing things up as you go and dividing them into items to be donated or to be thrown out. At the end of the month, call the dump haulers or the people who take donations.

Keep in mind: If you haven't put up outdoor holiday decorations in five years, you won't start now. Relatives who indicate they want a certain item need to remove it immediately. You really don't need 17 sets of sheets or towels. Just because your mother kept her own mother's cherished items for 30 years doesn't mean you need to do the same.

But best of all: If something is no longer on a shelf, you don't have to dust it.

2. "The Lion Sleeps Tonight," in 1961. The song was first written in Zulu in 1939 and is alternately called "Wimoweh" and "Mbube."
3. Martha and the Vandellas, in 1963. The song has been widely used in films, including "Carrie," "Sister Act" and the sequel "More American Graffiti."
4. The UB40 is a welfare form in the U.K. for claiming benefits. All the band members were unemployed when they formed the group.
5. "In My Room," by the Beach Boys, in 1963. The song made it to Rolling Stone's list of 500 greatest songs, and it's been covered by numerous artists. The 30-year box set contains a slightly earlier version than the one that was officially released.

"Succession" (TV-MA) — What better way to end the killer lineup that HBO's Sunday night slot has had for the past year than with the finale of the show "Succession"? After four seasons following the dynamic Roy siblings around their vulgar corporate wonderland, the coveted position as CEO of their father's company, Waystar RoyCo, will fall into just one person's hands. As longtime viewers of the show know, anything is possible when it comes to the Roys. The incredible leads — Jeremy Strong, Sarah Snook and Kieran Culkin — along with the rest of the talented cast are sure to bring the show to a bitter-sweet close. The full 10-episode final season is out now. (HBO Max)

"Menendez + Menudo, Boys Betrayed" (NR) — A new development in the story of Lyle and Erik Menendez, the brothers who were sentenced to life in prison for murdering their parents, has come to light and spawned a three-part docuseries. During their 1996 trial, the brothers alleged that their father, Jose, had sexually abused them for years, but these claims weren't considered by the prosecution to be their true motivation for the murders. Now, Roy Rosello, former member of Puerto Rican pop group Menudo (previous members also include Ricky Martin and Draco Rosa), comes forward in this docuseries about the sexual abuse he also suffered from Jose Menendez. For those who don't know the Menendez story or the horrific working conditions of being in Menudo — as well as other American boybands who followed Menudo's lead — I highly recommend this sobering docuseries out now. (Peacock)

"A Man Called Otto" (PG-13) — America's dad Tom Hanks leads this sweet comedy-drama film based on the 2012 novel "A Man Called Ove" by Swedish author Fredrik Backman. Backman's novel was first adapted onto the big screen in Sweden back in 2015, but an English-language film was quickly put into motion in 2017. Hanks plays Otto Anderson, a widower in Pennsylvania who has become quite the grump after his wife's passing. After retiring, Otto prepares to end his life, but when a new family moves in nearby, their genuine warmth and love slowly lead Otto to find his purpose in life again. "A Man Called Otto" is out now. (Netflix)

"The Old Way" (R) — Declaration-of-Independence-stealer Nicolas Cage stars in this new western film out now on streaming. Taking place in the late 1800s, Colton Briggs (Cage) was known as a truly unruly gunfighter — that is, until he got married. So, now that Colton's a husband to a woman named Ruth, his life has completely altered over the course of 20 years. And he has a spunky 12-year-old daughter, Brooke, to show for it. But, when dear Ruth is murdered in cold-blood by a bandit from Colton's past, the gunfighter he kept tucked away comes out for vengeance — this time with a sidekick. This is a father-daughter dance like you've never seen before. (Hulu)

Dble Opening lead — ?

The Lightner slam double is a valuable convention that can defeat a slam that might otherwise be made by directing partner to make an "unusual" opening lead. However, it is not always clear what the unusual lead might be. Sometimes the opening leader is still in the dark about which suit to lead after the double, and a failure to divine partner's wishes can cost a huge number of points.

Consider this deal from a team contest where East doubled six spades to stop West from leading a diamond, the suit East had bid. The double forbade a diamond lead, but it did not tell West whether to lead a heart or a club.

Observe that any lead but a club would hand South the slam with an overtrick for a score of 1,860 points! But West, after considering the matter fully, came forth with a club lead, and declarer quickly went down one when East cashed the A-K.

West's club lead was well thought out. He reasoned that North, for his jump to six spades, expected his partner to make the slam against a diamond lead, which in turn meant that North was very likely to have a long, solid side suit for his leap to six spades.

Pursuing this line of reasoning, West concluded that dummy's solid side suit had to be hearts, since West was looking at the Q-10-x of clubs in his own hand.

West was duly rewarded for his sound logic by a score of +200 instead of a loss of 1,860.

People Who Get COVID-19 Vaccine Less Likely To Die From Any Cause

DEAR DR. ROACH: In a recent column, you referred to a U.K. source that stated "all-cause mortality is very significantly reduced in people who have had the COVID-19 vaccine, compared to unvaccinated people." I wasn't sure what you meant by all-cause? Does this mean any and all deaths, with or without COVID-19, for any reason, have been very significantly reduced just by getting the COVID-19 shot? Or does it mean that any and all deaths associated with COVID-19 have been reduced in those who have been vaccinated? If it is the first, then fewer people should be dying, people should be living longer, and we should not see a decrease in life expectancy (except for the addition of those dying from COVID-19, which brings the age down). Anyway, if the first is true, then I will definitely continue getting the COVID-19 shot just to live longer, with or without getting COVID-19! -- C.P.

ANSWER: PiThe U.K. study looked at all-cause mortality, which means anyone who dies from any reason. The study found that getting the COVID-19 vaccine reduced the likelihood of dying from COVID-19 and non-COVID-19 causes.

One potential problem studies face is assigning cause of death. If a person with a very serious cancer who is expected to pass away within a few months gets COVID-19 and dies, did the cancer kill them, or did COVID-19? If you have to choose just one cause, the answer could be misleading. That's why the results of the U.K. study (and a Florida study that showed similar results) were so important. People who get the COVID-19 vaccine are less likely to die from any cause.

In the last few years in the U.S., the longstanding trend of improved mortality has reversed, and death rates are going up, partially due to COVID-19.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My husband has been diagnosed with cardiac amyloidosis. The doctor has started him on Vyndamax, a very expensive drug. Without this drug, he is lucky to live, at the most, two years. Is this drug a miracle, and does it guarantee that he will live many more years? -- T.W.

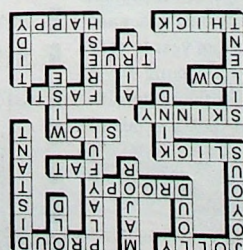

ANSWER: There are several types of cardiac amyloidosis -- a disease in which abnormal proteins are deposited in many tissues, including the heart, where the protein interferes with heart function and leads to heart failure. Tafadamis (also known by its brand name, Vyndamax) is used in transthyretin amyloid cardiomyopathy (ATTR, of which there are two types that both get treated with tafadamis).

Subjects in the trial on tafadamis were followed for two-and-a-half years. Half of the group were given tafadamis, while the other half were given a placebo, which looked like the real drug but had no activity. Of those who got the inactive placebo, 43% died in the two-and-a-half-year time span of the study, but of those who received tafadamis, 30% died. Thirteen percent, or about one in eight people, who received tafadamis lived, when they were expected to die. In addition, there were fewer hospitalizations and less loss of ability to exercise in those taking tafadamis, compared with the placebo. There were no serious side effects that were more frequent in the tafadamis group.

Tafadamis definitely affords a big improvement in the outcome of people with ATTR-CA. However, I would not call the drug a "miracle," nor is there a guarantee of living many more years. To me, a miracle is when someone recovers when no doctor expected them to. I have seen a few in my career, and they are very powerful. I have seen many treatments that have incremental improvements in outcomes, and over time, that has led to dramatic improvements in many diseases.

SENIOR NEWS LINE

by Matilda Charles

Who Is Stealing From Us?

We think we would know when we're being scammed, but would we really? Financial exploitation of seniors can take many forms, and it's one of many types of elder abuse.

The exploitation can be as simple as taking cash out of our purse or wallet when we aren't looking, leaving us to wonder whether we actually had the money.

It can be outright theft of money from our accounts after we've given someone our personal information.

It's fraud when someone forges our signature on documents, causing us to lose money or property, or when someone misuses a power of attorney.

Exploitation can come in the form of pressure, persuasion or coercion when someone talks us into making changes to our finances, a will or an estate plan, or when we're pushed to pay their bills or buy them things.

The ones who do this to us aren't necessarily foreigners who manage to get us on the phone and try to wheedle personal information out of us or convince us to buy something. Sometimes the ones who do these things to us are people we trust.

Sometimes it's a relative, someone we're dating or even a child or grandchild pretending to act in our best interests. Sometimes it's a caregiver. The fact that they would steal from us can be shocking to even think about — until they do. Cash, jewelry, income checks taken out of the mailbox, money taken out of our accounts when they discover our PIN ... the list is nearly endless.

One small step to help guard your finances: Do your banking inside the bank so tellers get to know you and your normal habits. Another small step: Make use of a shredder.

But mostly, trust yourself. If you're suspicious, trust that feeling. If you suspect you're the victim of financial exploitation in any form, call the police. Don't wait.

Quincy Baseball Bows To Boxers In Season Finale

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High baseball team faced a tough challenge in its season finale last week.

The Presidents hosted the Brockton Boxers at Adams Field on May 26, and their opponent had a strong offensive showing. The Presidents fell 13-1, bringing an end to their season. With the loss, the Presidents finished the season at 1-21.

Neither side scored in the first inning, but Brockton took a 2-0 lead in the top of the second. The team scored two runs on an overthrow. The two runners had reached base on a double and a walk, respectively. In the bottom of the second, Sam Swan reached base after being hit by a pitch. His courtesy runner, Anthony Tibbetts, stole second base. However, the Presidents were unable to knock the runner in from scoring position.

Brockton added two more runs in the top of the third. It scored on an infield error, as well as a double. The Presidents ended the frame by throwing out a runner who attempted to steal second base.

An inning later, Brockton added three more runs. A wild pitch scored the first run of the inning, then a walk re-loaded the bases. After the walk, the Presidents pulled their starting pitcher. A sacrifice fly and a single up the middle added two more runs in the inning, giving Brockton a 7-0 advantage.

While Jack Dunn poked a one-out single to shallow left field for the Presidents in the bottom of the fifth, Brockton got two more outs and kept the Presidents scoreless.

Brockton then took a 9-0 lead in the top of the sixth after hitting a two-run single to right field. However, the Presidents' offense responded with some offense of their own in the bottom of the sixth.

Jayden Robles legged out an infield single, and Joe MacNeil drew a walk, giving the Presidents two runners on base. Robles advanced to third base on a wild pitch. Then, Aiden Manning knocked a runner in with an RBI single up the middle. The run made it a 9-1 game. Brockton recovered from this and got the outs necessary to end the inning without surrendering any more runs.

Brockton capped off its scoring effort with four more runs in the top of the seventh. It scored on a hit batsmen with the bases loaded and a passed ball. Plus, a Brockton batter hit a two-run double to the outfield, extending the team's lead to 12 runs.

Ultimately, the Presidents were unable to score in the bottom of the seventh, although Will Martin hit a single up the middle.

This marked the second time the Presidents played Brockton this season. They also faced off on April 13 in Brockton; the Presidents lost that one, 11-1.

The Presidents were on the younger side this season; they have five seniors on their roster.

also flew out, ending the inning.

While Pritchard was sharp on the mound for the Raiders, the defense behind him made some key plays to keep the game scoreless in the first seven innings.

O'Leary, who played shortstop, executed a double play in the top of the fourth; he ran to second base, tagged the bag, and gunned the ball to first base for the second out.

Additionally, catcher Max Gaudiano caught a runner stealing in the top of the sixth, and a long throw from Ambroult at third base ended the top of the seventh.

This was the second time the Raiders and Scituate played each other this season. The two teams also faced off on May 9; the Raiders won that game, 6-3.

Following last Thursday's game, it was unclear whether or not the Raiders would make the playoffs. The Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association is expected to release its playoff brackets this week.

The Raiders are on the younger side this season; they have five seniors on their roster.

The roster for the Raid-

global war on terror and veterans are coming home to hugs and kisses and thank yous. Why? Because of 9/11 when we were attacked on our own soil. People realized that was pretty close and we needed to thank the vets. That's why they get it now."

Bouchard said the island is all about honoring those who served.

"When I think of this island behind me, I think of all these veterans I talked about," he said. "My dad and brother are (honored) behind me. I thank the Sons for doing this every year."

Guest speaker was Alicia Ping, commander of the Quincy Naval Reserve Center where she is responsible for ensuring that local Navy reservists are ready to respond on a moment's notice to a threat. A Navy aviator, she flew worldwide missions during the War on Terror. She served in the Navy Unique Fleet Essential Airlift and was deployed as a detachment officer in charge as the Sigonella and Naval Air Facility Atsugi.

She related a quote from President John F. Kennedy, "As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them."

Noting that she comes from a family of veterans, Ping said "It's easy for me, as an actively serving military officer, to follow Kennedy's advice."

"But soon, I'll be retiring from the Navy and so my perspective on Memorial Day and how I commemorate it will have to change," she said. "I'll have to ask myself, 'how can I do more than utter just words of appreciation?' I realize that I can start on this journey by simply looking at you. I can follow your example."

Ping said she is fortunate to end her career in the "most patriotic city in the country. Quincy is unique in that pride in community has translated into service. And for many, that has included service in defense of our nation."

"Everyday around town I see the pride that people have in this community," she said. "When I drive down the streets of Quincy, I see American flags flying, memorials, and bumper stickers honoring service. I'm thankful to all of you. And I'm taking note of what you're doing so that I'll know what I should be doing in the future."

Ping also thanked the city for its support of those families who lost loved ones while serving.

"So many of you have given so much of yourselves in honor of those who have sacrificed for our country," she said.

Ping expressed appreciation that the city doesn't treat Memorial Day as a just another holiday but "as an opportunity to celebrate our country's true heroes."

"Next year at this time, I'll no longer be wearing my uniform to work every day," she said. "And on Memorial Day 2024, I'll be inspired by everyone here today in Quincy to follow Kennedy's instruction. I'll remember that it's not enough to utter words of appreciation for those who give this holiday its meaning. Instead, I will live by them."

Wreaths were placed at the flagpole and at each bench. Taps was played by Chaplain Don Knight, the poem "In Flanders Field" was recited by Ferris, and the National Anthem was sung by squadron member Bill Daley.

Ferris and Squadron Adjutant Stephen Fowles also recited the names of comrades and others with ties to the Morrisette Post or Squadron 294 who have passed away this past year. Those remembered were: Robert Ciardi, Pasquale "Pat" DiMaggio, Robert Pettengill, James Smith, Ronald Hupprich and James Shea, Jr.

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH said the Flags for Veterans Island exudes a special feeling. "I can't help every time I drive by this that I think of and Paul Moody and Joe Brill," he said. "And I thank the sons (Sons of the American Legion Squadron) for continuing their legacy. It really gives you a good feeling when you drive by here and see Old Glory in such a way."

PUBLIC NOTICE

2023 SUMMER WATER MAIN/ HYDRANT FLUSHINGS

DATE: JUNE 4TH - MONTH OF AUGUST

TIME: 9:00 P.M. — 5:00 A.M.

Areas servicing restaurants, bars and food establishments work to begin after midnight.

FLUSHING AREA: WOLLASTON, NORTH QUINCY, SQUANTUM

Check website for weekly scheduling of locations to be serviced.

You can find detailed information about our flushing program on scan the QR-code or visit https://www.quincyma.gov/departments/public_works/dpw_projects/hydrant_flushing.php. For other questions, please call the DPW Customer Service

WHAT IS WATER MAIN FLUSHING?

Water main flushing is a process in which water is systematically removed from the water system by sequentially opening fire hydrants and running them until the water is clear. During a water main flushing program, the scouring action created by inducing high flows helps to clean out the inner walls of the pipes and remove any build-up of naturally occurring debris and sediments.

- Water main flushing is crucial to the overall maintenance of a distribution system and is an important practice to maintain high water quality, improve the carrying capacity of pipes, and ensure proper operation of distribution system components, such as hydrants and valves.
- Flushing the water mains also ensures that fire hydrants are operational and allows DPW staff to assess the available flow rate for firefighting purposes.
- A main flushing program is typically carried out by flushing fire hydrants in a sequential order and until the water runs clear.

CAN I USE MY WATER WHEN IT IS DISCOLORED?

We advise customers not to use discolored water until it is clear. Discolored water is not palatable, and its quality has changed since it left the MWRA treatment facility. Therefore it should not be used for drinking or cooking. It could also stain laundry, discolor hot water systems, and interfere with commercial and industrial operations that rely on high quality water for their processes. Once the water has cleared, customers can resume normal use of the water.

WHAT YOU MIGHT EXPERIENCE

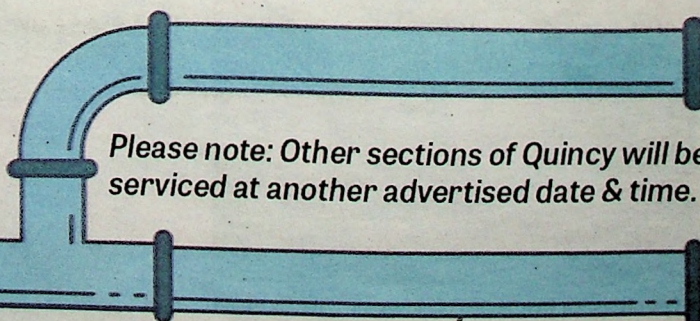

While the flushing program is ongoing, customers may notice episodes of decreased water pressure or discoloration of their water. Water discoloration results from temporary disturbances of the normal water flow within our piping network. These short-term changes in flow can stir up naturally occurring minerals and sediment that settle within the water mains. The objective of the water main/hydrant flushing program is to remove these accumulated sediments from our pipes by flushing the water out of the fire hydrants.

ACTIONS YOU CAN TAKE.

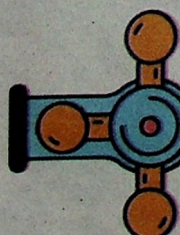

1. Sign up for Alert Quincy by scanning the red QR-Code here. Alerts will be sent to your mobile device

2. Store water in your refrigerators for drinking and cooking.
3. Refrain from using hot water for washing laundry, etc.
4. Run cold-water faucets until the water appears clear
